BOND BUYING FOR 'TOUGHER' WAR STARTS

Air Raid Sirens and Airplanes Sound Opening of Big Drive In County.

5,000 TO BE ON JOB

City, County Set Out to Raise $6,060,000 Toward Nation's Goal of 15 Billions.

The Third War Loan campaign got off to a flying start today, spurred by the surrender of Italy and made more urgent by President Roosevelt's warning that the war will become "bigger and tougher" rather than easier in the months to come.

The president touched off the $15,000,000,000 drive last night with a radio speech in which he warned the American people that the "time for celebration" hadn't yet arrived.

And in Mansfield today the sound of air raid sirens and of planes flying overhead was the "starting gun" for the biggest loan drive of the war. It started 5,000 workers on their 21-day job of selling to Richland countains $6,060,000 in war bonds.

Individual subscriptions in Mansfield must total $4,600,000 if the city is to reach its goal. Shelby has been asked for $900,000 and workers in the townships and villages are seeking $600,000.

Workers in the retail establishments in the city jammed the Madison theater at 9 a. m. today to open their part of the bond campaign, most of them signing pledge cards to sell or buy $200 worth of bonds and stamps during the campaign.

Fred Hout, who headed the bond drive just a year ago, outlined the objectives of the campaign and urged full participation of all retail workers. W. L. Faulkner, manager of Kobacker's store, was chairman of the retailers' meeting. Community singing was led by Charles Conklin and John Grabler played accompaniment on the accordion.

At a meeting Tuesday the women's division of the county war bond committee headed by Mrs.

Mayor Going to Columbus Again On Airport Job

Mayor W. J. Locke continued to play a lone hand for the city today in getting the airport expansion project under way, announcing he would go to Columbus again this afternoon to confer with state highway department officials on a detour route around the proposed airport site north of the city.

The mayor, who has made several trips to Columbus on airport business, said he understood the state was about ready to detour State Route 13 around the site since it might take too long to get federal funds for relocating the highway.

Meanwhile, he said he was still negotiating for three real estate men to appraise the 1,000 acres of land the city wants for the project. City council set up an additional $800 Tuesday night to pay the appraisers.

Asked about reports that the airport negotiations are lagging, Mayor Locke said "we still have more than three and a half months to get the land, and we ought to be able to do it on schedule."

IT'S LOPSIDED

Speakers Outnumber Audience at Pittsburgh Rally.

PITTSBURGH — (U.P.) — The speakers outnumbered the audience at a Republican rally in northside Carnegie hall last night. When 17 Republicans running for four nominations to city council stepped out onto the platform they found:

Three working reporters, a musician engaged to play the "Star Spangled Banner," several friends of the candidates and three voters who said they came to hear the speeches.

Has Grave Task

This is Calvin B. Baldwin, former farm security administrator who was named by Secretary of State Cordell Hull as director of economic operations for Italy. Baldwin, now prepared to move in as America's virtual economic governor of the Italian mainland following Italy's surrender, is faced with the task of coordinating the feeding and farming systems and reorganization of war-disrupted transportation and housing in Italy.

$72,300 FUND BUDGET SET UP

Community Fund Quota Fixed For Drive; War Chest Goal To Be Set Today.

Mansfield will be called on next month to give $72,300 to the Community Fund to help finance operation of its 11 agencies in 1944.

The budget for the year, set up last night by the Community Fund budget committee headed by Arthur E. Courtney, represents an increase of $7,280, or approximately 12 per cent over the 1943 goal. The $72,300 goal set up by the committee is $7,368 less than the 11 agencies sought for next year.

Most of the increases will go into salary raises for the 33 Community Fund agency workers who received an average of $20 a week for their labor this year. Every workers but one asked for a salary increase for 1944 to meet higher living costs, and W. L. Miller, Community Fund chairman, asked the bud-

BLAZE AT PLANT

Paint Fumes Ignited, Firemen Called To Westinghouse.

Two fire companies worked for a half hour today to put out a blaze in the paint shop at the Westinghouse plant which proved more spectacular than damaging to the plant. The fire was reported about 10 a. m.

Apparently igniting from a paint oven, fumes carried the flames through long blowers onto the roof of the building on Wayne street. Firemen from stations 1 and 4 climbed over the building, but had difficulty getting to the flames until openings were made in the blowers. There was no estimate of damage, but it was believed slight.

It was the third trip for the fire department to the Westinghouse plant in three days. The alarm was set off Tuesday by a Truck, and a short in a coil at the Wayne street building brought firemen again about 11 a. m. yesterday. There was no damage then.

MAYOR RESIGNS

Quits Non-Essential Job to Work In Seattle Shipyard.

MANDAN, N. D. —(U.P.)— Mayor C. G. Byerly will submit his resignation soon—and go to work as painter at a Seattle shipyard.

"All three of my kids are in service," he wrote a friend from Seattle recently, "so with me in a defense plant, the family will be 100 per cent all out."

OPPOSITION WEAK

Army, Navy Stage Amphibious Test In Channel as Correspondents Watch.

(By International News Service)

LONDON—American and British bombing planes ravaged northern France in almost unprecedented strength today while combined army and navy amphibious exercises were in progress at channel ports.

Authoritative circles permitted use of the phrase "softening up" to describe the aerial onslaughts which developed into one of the heaviest daylight bomber and fighter attacks of the war.

The amphibious channel exercises carried out under the terrific curtain of bombers and fighters that swept overhead were the most extensive maneuvers of their type yet staged.

Correspondents were permitted to witness both the sea and air actions from "grandstand seats" along the English channel. Several different ports and large numbers of men and ships participated.

Great formations of bombers passed back and forth across the Straits of Dover to batter objectives on the western continent.

Sometimes the bombers were escorted by armadas of fighters while on other sorties the bombers flying at low altitude went out unescorted.

The heavy bombing of targets in France was audible in England and at frequent intervals the concussion of the explosions rocked houses on the English side of the channel.

The assault appeared concentrated on the Boulogne and Calais areas.

The terrific cross-channel activity undoubtedly was designed to add to German invasion jitters in the wake of Italy's removal from the war.

The cross-channel aerial blows carried the shattering aerial offensive against western Europe into the eighth successive day.

Both British and American

DECIDES DEATH WAS NATURAL

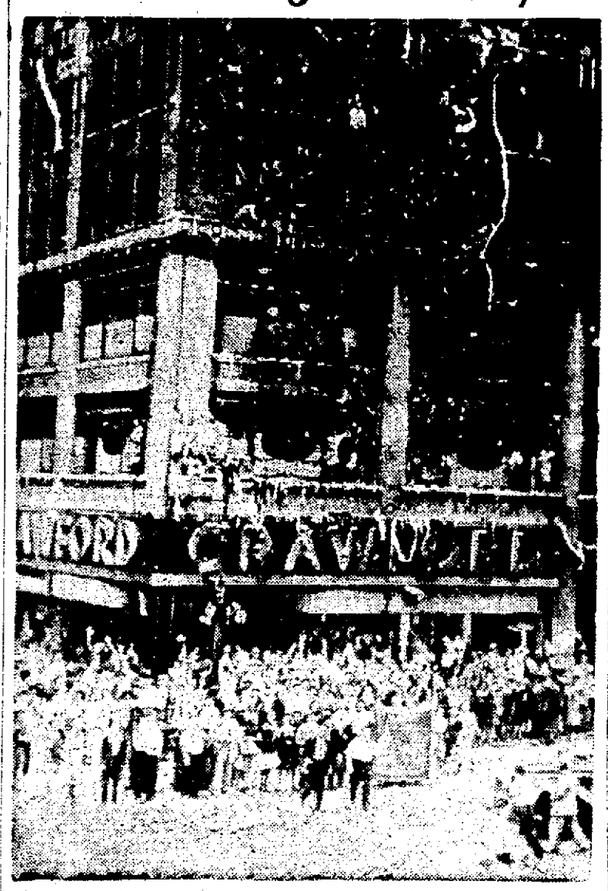
Deputy Sheriff Offers Theory In Mystery Decapitation.

MARIETTA —(AP)— Coroner R. W. Riggs was expected to return a verdict of death from natural causes today in the case of B. C. Robinson, 82-year-old southeastern Ohio oilman whose decapitated body was found near city limits Tuesday night.

Robinson's head, false teeth and raincoat were located yesterday 300 yards from the drainage ditch in which the body was discovered by a fisherman.

Deputy Sheriff Charles Ross theorized the head might have been torn from the body as recent rains moved it down the shallow drainage creek. Robinson had disappeared Aug. 26.

Celebrating Fall of Italy



News of Italy's surrender touches off spontaneous celebrations in cities throughout the U. S., with the nation's largest city, New York, reacting with the usual ticker tape shower and street demonstrations. The photo above shows a scene in New York as Gothamites celebrated. Civilians and servicemen joined in shouting "Hitler's next!" and "Good old Ike!"

'Foolhardy' Army Flier's 'Tricks' Shake Homes Here

Appearing over Mansfield shortly before 3 p. m. yesterday a Flying Fortress bearing the insignia of the U. S. Army air forces cavorted wildly at low altitude for 20 minutes in what seasoned airmen termed "foolhardy exhibitionism."

Its four 1,200 horsepower engines roaring, the huge bomber raced over the city almost at housetop level making the serial number on the vertical fin plainly discernible and features of a

NOT SO FAST!

Don't Go Dashing Off For Italian Delicacies.

WASHINGTON— (U.P.) — Gourmets of Italian cheese, wines, olive oil and other viands! Restrain yourselves.

The return of Italian delicacies to American tables still is a long way off, although Italy's capitulation will hasten the day.

It was pointed out that Germany has drawn heavily upon whatever reserve food stocks Italy had when she entered the war and that for the time being, at least, few shipments can be expected of Italian cheese, olive oil, tomato paste, Vermouth and Chianti wine.

Trade experts said it was too early yet to determine when commerce would resume between the United States and Italy.

BAN ON FATHER DRAFT SPURRED

Italy's Surrender Brings Quick Call For New Survey of Manpower.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Italy's unconditional surrender gave momentum today to a congressional drive for a ban on the drafting of fathers, but brought warning from both Capitol Hill and elsewhere in Washington that it did not mean the war against the Axis would end quickly.

Typical of the reaction was the terse comment of Elmer Davis, head of the office of information (OWI), that "we haven't licked the Germans yet."

On both sides of the Capitol demands were voiced for quick action to halt the projected induction or pre-Pearl Harbor fathers and for a general congressional survey of manpower resources.

"There just isn't any need for the drafting of pre-Pearl

Pigs Stolen, Check On 'Black Market' Operations Opens

A systematic stealing of pigs and butchering on the grounds possibly indicating black-market operations were reported to Sheriff Frank E. Robinson today by John Hardesty, residing east of Mansfield on U. S. Route 30.

Hardesty told the sheriff seven of his pigs had been stolen in the past month, the last one a week-old pig. He said he had found evidence on his farm that the stolen animals had been butchered there before being taken away.

According to Hardesty's report, several farmers in the vicinity of his farm have had pigs, ducks and other livestock stolen recently.

Another report of stolen livestock came to the sheriff's office today from Mrs. Glen Hartman, Shelby-Ontario road. Mrs. Hartman told deputies 25 or 30 white rock chickens had been stolen from her home sometime during the night of Sept. 6.

Back-Stabbing Mussolini Now Sees Day of Trial Approach

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The man who stabbed France in the back today sees the day approaching when he must face trial for his cowardly act. He may already be in the custody of Allied invasion forces.

The whereabouts of Benito Mussolini has been the number one mystery of the war since July 25, when he was deposed as the chief of the Italian government after 18 years of boast and bombast.

The terms of Eisenhower's armistice with Marshal Pietro Badoglio, Mussolini's successor, were agreed upon on Sept. 3, it has been announced, and it is considered probable that the disposition of Mussolini was one of the questions settled at that time.

If Mussolini was in the hands of the Italian government, as persistent reports have indicated, then it is possible that the Italian government turned him over to Eisenhower as the world's number one prisoner of war.

That Mussolini will be "brought to book" for his guilt in leading the Italian people into war, is taken for granted in all the Allied —and Axis—capitals of the world, where President Roosevelt's stern words on punishment for the Axis war crimes are well remembered.

Only yesterday, reports from neutral European capitals told that Mussolini was being transferred from one island prison to another by the Italians for "safe keeping." It may well be that this transfer actually was from Italian to Allied custody.

GERMANS' GHQ IN ITALY DESTROYED BY YANK BOMBERS

FDR PROMISE FULFILLED BY NEW LANDINGS

Troops Reported Going Ashore All Along Western Coast of Italy.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt's promise of new Allied landings on hostile shores began to be fulfilled early today with American invasion of the Italian mainland—a follow-up of the one-two punch that ousted Mussolini and brought Italy's unconditional surrender.

There were unofficial reports of landings all along the western coast of Italy, but the Allied communique mentioned only "the vicinity of Naples."

Speculation—and expectation—of imminent landings in Norway, southern France, the islands of Sardinia and Corsica, Greece or Crete, the Dodecanese islands in the eastern Mediterranean, Yugoslavia and Albania followed Mr. Roosevelt's radio address last night in which he said American fighting men were landing "at this moment" from barges "moving through the dawn up to strange enemy coasts."

His address was delivered at 9:45 p. m., (EWT) 15 minutes after operations in the Naples area began. Mr. Roosevelt apparently received confirmation of the new invasion just before going on the air because twice he departed from his prepared text to insert the phrase "at this moment." But it was not announced to the public until 1 a. m., (EWT).

Emphasizing that Italy's surrender was merely an incident in a developing and unrelenting plan, he warned that the war is not over, not even in the Mediterranean.

"This war does not and must

DEADLINE SET

Food Retailers Must Post Prices By Sept. 13.

Food retail dealers in Mansfield and Richland county along with dealers in 18 other northeastern Ohio counties in the Cleveland Office of Price Administration district will be required to post an OPA list of the standardized community flat prices covering 1,300 brands of groceries by Monday, Sept. 13, it was announced today.

Dealers were supplied with a list of prices for all stores when the flat pricing was introduced last May, but were required to post their selling price only.

A. H. Anderson, district price officer, said that most merchants are cooperating on complying with ceiling prices, but a small minority of them are contributing to increased living costs by charging more than the lawful price. With the price list posted in every food store, consumers can compare the selling prices with top legal prices.

Gen. Clark In Command of Big Force Occupying Key Area 'According to Plan' Despite Opposition, Swiss Say Planes Swarm Upon Fields.

BULLETIN

BERN, Switzerland — (AP) — Allied forces which landed on the Tyrrhenian coastline (presumably in the Naples area), began moving northward with an advance guard of Italian troops, reports from the Italian frontier said. Milan, Turin and other industrial centers of northern Italy were said to be completely in the hands of Italian military authorities, with German soldiers leaving those places.

BULLETIN

LONDON — (INS) — An Anglo-American combined fleet entered the harbor of Genoa at 3 a. m. today (10 p. m. EWT, Wednesday) the Evening Standard reported in a Lugano dispatch which quoted "three separate reliable sources."

(By Associated Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa—A powerful American and British force under U. S. Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark swept ashore in the vicinity of Naples, a third of the way up the Italian boot, at 4 a. m. today.

It was immediately engaged by German forces fighting fiercely in the midst of the chaos of Italy's unconditional surrender, but Allied headquarters announced that operations were going according to plan and that prisoners already had been taken.

At the same time it was announced that waves of Flying Fortresses, striking six hours before the armistice with Italy yesterday, had wiped out German military headquarters in Italy with a terrific half-hour bombing of Frascati, 12 miles outside Rome.

Official reports said the town, nearly every building of which was occupied by German officers, was levelled. The town, with a population of about 12,000, is famous for its wine.

(The mention of General Clark indicated the American Fifth army, long held in reserve in North Africa, now has gone into action. Under Clark's command, it has been training steadily in North Africa for just such a venture into the European continent.)

The headquarters war bulletin also announced new landings early Wednesday at Vibo Valentia in the Gulf of Eufemia, some 30 miles north of Palmi where the British Eighth army was reported sweeping up along the Calabrian coast.

The landing on the Gulf of Eufemia, first mentioned yesterday in a Berlin broadcast, was completed "after light opposition," the communique said, and was carried out in Royal Naval vessels supported by warships.

Canadian and British troops of the Eighth army "have moved forward considerably," the bulletin announced, adding that the lateral road from Locri, on the east coast, to Gioia, eight miles above Palmi on the west coast, "is now in our hands."

The Eighth army thus has blocked off the entire southern end of the Italian toe.

Shape of Things to Come

LONDON—(INS)—A full-scale Allied amphibious exercise has recently taken place in the English channel, an official announcement said today.

"It has been most successful and valuable lessons have been learned by service and civil authorities concerned," the announcement said.

It was understood that the exercise was designed to test military and civil authorities under operational conditions in which troops were brought from garrison areas into concentration zones, then sent to assembly points and to embarkation points.

U. S. Subs Sink Six More Jap Ships, Bring Toll to 223

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The navy announced today that U. S. submarines in Far Eastern waters have sunk six more Japanese merchant ships in a new series of blows against faltering enemy supply lines in the Pacific theater of war.

At the same time, the navy disclosed that the same submarines had damaged four other enemy vessels, bringing the total number of Jap ships sunk by U. S. subs to 223 and the number damaged to 67.

In addition, since Pearl Harbor, about 29 other Jap vessels have been listed as "probably sunk" by American undersea raiders.

Disclosure of the new sinkings, not previously announced, followed by less than a week the statement by Secretary of Navy Knox that more than one-third of all Japanese merchant tonnage has been torpedoed to the bottom of the sea by fleets of the Allied Nations, with U. S. submarines accounting for 77 per cent of the toll.

According to Knox, the enemy in the Far East had about 6,368,891 tons of merchant shipping when war broke out, and since that time had built or seized about 1,250,000 tons more. The Allies have sunk more than one-third of the total or more than 2,539,000 tons.

Tonnages of the latest ships reported sunk and damaged were not given by the navy but it was believed that they would total more than 80,000 tons since the vessels sunk included two large freighters, one large cargo ship, one medium tanker, one small

MISS MEYERS BRIDE OF SGT. R. M. NICHOLAS

Ceremony Takes Place In Park Avenue Baptist Church; Rev. Peter Young Officiates at 4:30 Service Sunday Afternoon.

THE BEAUTIFUL WEDDING of Miss LaNola Elizabeth Meyers and Sgt. Richard M. Nicholas took place Sunday afternoon, Sept. 5, at 4:30 in the afternoon. Rev. Peter Young officiated at the Park Avenue Baptist church.

The ceremony was preceded by a half hour's program of organ music, played by Mrs. Rhea Twitchell. Mrs. Twitchell included "Indian Love Call," "I Love You Truly," "Ave Maria," "The Rosary" and the traditional wedding marches in her selections.

The church was illuminated with the light from tapers in two seven branched candelabra. The altar was banked with palms, fern and two beauty baskets of Picardy gladioli and white asters.

The bride, who was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her uncle, Paul Meyers, was attired in a lovely gown of off white slipper satin, outlined with a narrow edging of lace rushing. The gown was styled with a sweetheart neckline, leg-o-mutton sleeves, which were tight fitting at the wrists. The buttoned sleeves formed a small lace edged cap over the back of the hand.

The full skirt of the gown fell in loose folds over a hoop skirt, deeply accenting the snug waistline. The back of the gown closed with tiny buttons to the waist, where the skirt extended into a long flowing train.

The bride wore her sheer fingertip veil virgin style. It was attached to a coronet headpiece of Chantilly lace. The bridal bouquet was an arm style arrangement of white glads, delphinium and roses.

A sister of the bride Mrs. Paul H. Kramb, of Cleveland, served as matron of honor. Mrs. Kramb was gowned in pink marquisette, fashioned with a bouffant skirt with lace insertions, and Bishop leaves. Her shoulder length veil was held in place by a floral headpiece.

She carried an arm bouquet of pastel shades of yellow and pink roses with Picardy glads.

A close friend of the bridegroom, William Gross, served as best man. Ushers were Theron Meyers and James Gilbert.

Mrs. Meyers, mother of the bride, wore a navy blue frock with matching accesories. Mrs. Nicholas chose a navy blue frock with ice blue accessories. Both wore corsages of red roses.

Immediately following the ceremony, an informal reception was held at the Meyers' home for the wedding party, immediate families and close friends.

For traveling, the new Mrs. Nicholas wore a navy two piece dress. She carried a carrot-orange purse, which matched the Chinese motiff across the left shoulder of the frock. Other accessories were in navy blue. The couple did not disclose where they would go for their short wedding trip.

The former Miss Meyers is a graduate of Mansfield Senior high school and is an employe of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company.

Sgt. Nicholas graduated from Mansfield Senior high school and attended Ohio State university before entering the armed service. He is now stationed with the armored forces at Camp Cooke in California.

Out of town guests at the wedding were from Akron, Ashland, Cleveland, Shelby, Leroy, Columbus and Fredericksburg.

I don't know whether psychiatrists would be interested in this or not.

But it's been my observation that crazy people never expect other people to do the same crazy things that the crazy people do. Does that make sense, in a crazy sort of way?

Sure. I was nuts enough to play golf in the rain last Sunday just because it was a tournament match, and I know a few others at Coolridge who did the same.

But I never dreamed for one minute that they'd be playing that 36-hole championship match at Westbrook in the rain Sunday.

Eighteen holes was plenty bad enough. But 36!

And, you know, those guys out at Westbrook are supposed to have better sense than that, even if we haven't.

It gives me great pleasure to report that they are just as nuts as we are.

How about some golf, old fella? Sure, bring ya boots and a good umbrella.

Thornton Lake and M. M. Feaman plodded through that 10-mile hike in the rain and the wind, sloshing up the hills and down the dales, hunting that pot of gold at the end of the rainbow. I give you my word, there was no rainbow. The sun's got to come out for that and there was no sun.

But Lake caught up with the pot, or in more polite language, the championship cup.

Lake shot rounds of 75-76 to win four up and three to play, after being three up on the first 18 holes. Feaman turned in cards of 79-77. Nice going for this war year of 1943.

And they weren't the only ones paddling around Westbrook in the Sunday rain. Paul Auxter won the second flight title with a 3-2 win over Art Vassar, and Howard Solzen defeated J. O. Hanley 1 up for the third flight crown.

The perfect picture was spoiled when a note of common sense crept in on Monday. The two-ball mixed foursome tournament booked for Labor day was postponed until a week from Sunday. Are these people golfers, or just sane?

Plan Two Mile Mansfield Race

Track Coaches Meet on Cross-Country.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—The executive committee of the Ohio association of track coaches will meet at Columbus Sept. 19 to plan the 1943 high school cross-country track meet tentatively scheduled for Mansfield Oct. 30, it was announced today.

Ed Barker, OATC secretary, said other important matters pertaining to the 1943-44 Ohio high school track program also would be discussed.

The annual two-mile cross country meet was cancelled last year because of the war, but the state high school athletic board of control authorized the event again this year at request of the state's high schools.

Although final details will not be worked out until the Columbus meeting usual practice has been to hold district qualifying meets at Springfield, Cincinnati, Toledo, Cleveland and Akron. Townsend said district meets will be held Oct. 23.

Approximately 100 finalists generally qualify for the state meet, the winners of which are recognized as the state champions, the commissioner said.

BUCKEYE GRIDDERS WORK ON TIMING

COLUMBUS—(INS)—Ohio State's varsity football squad today continued to perfect its timing and also spent considerable time learning a new play.

Coach Paul Brown is still searching for a punter of Big Ten calibre, needed if his team is to make any kind of a showing this coming season.

Tourney Deadline Reached

Tonight Closes Entry on County Golf Event.

WITH the deadline for filing entries in the fourth annual Richland County golf tournament set at midnight tonight, the entry list is rapidly mounting toword the 50-mark.

Tournament chariman Jimmy Morgan checked the list last night, found he had 37 entries actually posted, and a promise of eight to ten more from Shelby, and a number of Mansfield expected entries still to come.

* * *

It is expected that close to 70 golfers will be on hand at Westbrook Country club at tee time Sunday morning for the 36 hole grind. The entry blank is being published on this page for the last time today, and must be in the mail before midnight.

Golfers already lined up for the tournament are:

Possum Run—Pete Linster, Carl Wiseman, Adam Brandt, Grant Hanawalt, Pete Zeides, Al Kushin, Bill Gibson, Sid Mathias, Noel Morgan, Ted Etzel, Bert Earnshaw, George Hall, Jimmy Morgan, Carl Rupp, Frank De Woody, Perry Neldon, Hugh Ferguson.

Coolridge—Joe Mayer, George Percy, Hugo Brannon, Adam Mayer, Dick Gaubatz, Matz Fisher, Joe Frisch, Joe Kasper, George Zimmerman.

Westbrook—J. A. Vassar, Howard P. Hosler, M. M. Feaman, Dwight R. Anneaux, Jim Orr.

Unattached—Gene Zediker, Clayton Knoll, Bill Boyle, Fred Loykovitch, Bob Kelly, Gene Miller.

Joe Mayer, champion in 1940 and 1942, and runner-up in 1941 again ranks as favorite for the county title.

With Morgan acting as general chairman of the event for the J. A. C., the following committees have been named:

Advisory—Howard Hosler and Emerson Weller of Westbrook, Carl Wiseman and Pete Linster of Possum Run, Frank Jocha of Coolridge, Rex Hess, News-Journal.

Prize committee—Boyd Crall, Roy Norman, Bob Miller, Jimmy Morgan, Marlin Durbin and Dick Holloway.

Rules and play—Emerson Weller, Pete Linster, Carl Wiseman, Frank Jocha, Boyd Crall.

Scoring and starting—Harry Hollingsworth, Bob Miller, Emerson Weller, Marlin Durbin.

Prize distribution—Emerson Weller, Harry Hollingsworth, Pete Linster, Jimmy Morgan.

Assistant at Shelby Named

Ex-Marietta Captain To Help Swackhamer.

SHELBY—Forty candidates are practicing football at Shelby high school under Coach Larry Swackhamer. Dr. David N. Shaw, who accepted a position as physical education instructor, is assistant coach.

Dr. Shaw played football at Marietta college a number of years ago. He was captain of the team. Besides coaching the linemen, Dr. Shaw is serving as trainer. Lowell McMeeken, another member of the high school faculty, is serving as equipment manager.

The forty candidates out are Charles Phillips, Hart Yetzer, Bob Miller, Bill Thompson, Bill Coover, Jim Ryder, Don Abbott, Herb Pollard, Jim Reed, Duane Lantz, Bob Roberts, Ed Chorey, Jim Gains, Dave Conley, Kenneth Gates, Wallace Hardie, Ed Briner, Russell Morris, Herb Hart.

Indians Return To Action Today

DETROIT—(AP)—Cleveland's Indians engage the Detroit Tigers in a double header today, opening a six-game series which should clarify the three-team scramble for second place in the American league.

The Tigers are only one-half game behind the Tribe, which holds the runner-up spot over Washington by a single percentage point.

Al Smith and Allie Reynolds are Redskin mound nominees against Virgil (Fireball) Trucks and Hal White. Smith is after his 15th victory, which would equal his best mark in the majors.

JAC Richland County Golf Tourney

Thirty-six holes at Westbrook Country club, Sunday, Sept. 12. Entries open to all golfers in Richland county with handicaps of 10 or less. Entry blanks with entry fee of $3 (including greens fees) must be mailed to Jimmy Morgan, 166 West Raleigh, before midnight, Sept. 9.

Art of passing, mastered so well by Cecil Isbell, the former Purdue star who put in five brilliant seasons with the pro Green Bay Packers, is imparted to Halfback Sam Vacanti of the Purdue squad by Mr. Isbell himself. Isbell now is assistant Purdue coach. Vacanti is a Marine V-12 trainee from Iowa.

Minnesota Will Take Care Of Itself, Writer Learns

By LEO FISCHER

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—(INS)—Long ago, on this pre-season preambulation, we discovered one fact which never changes from year to year. Briefly it is this.

"Minnesota will take care of itself!"

War or no war, it still holds true. With many of the Gopher stalwarts scattered around the face of the globe, with more than half the squad made up of green freshmen and a schedule which includes most of the Big Ten's powerhouse aggregations, the 1943 Minnesota entry will be one which is going to command plenty of respect.

From all indications, it's going to be a typical Gopher eleven. This means a tough, heavy line as good as any in the conference and a capable backfield which may come up with a "breakway" runner to supply the most essential need of the team at the moment.

Coach George Hauser has lost a score of squadmen from his 1942 team, but he is more fortunately situated than many of the other mentors with about 16 of his varsity and frosh of last year on hand. Added to these are about 40 candidates from the naval school and about 16 youngsters just out of high school.

Only at the ends are there any question marks. Vern Gagne, a freshman, and Stuart Scheer, a squadman at Purdue last season, are first choices at the moment and may develop. They both weigh 187 and are six feet tall.

Tackle boasts a group of men second to none in these parts. Paul Mitchell, 214-pounds on a 6-foot 3-inch chassis, is back after playing a stellar role in the all-star game recently. On the other side of the line is a freshman put in 4-F because he is too big for the army. His name is Don Bunge, he stands 6 feet 7 inches tall and weighs 230. He was a brilliant prep star in football, track and basketball and although only 19 promises to make the leap into conference competition with a real crash.

Added tackle support comes from Bill Aldworth, 215-pound letterman from last year, a rugged senior named Mike Rapko who hasn't been out before because of engineering studies, and Rube Juster, 227-pound Minneapolis boy in the naval unit.

Ed Lechner, 6 foot 3 inches tall and 210 pounds in weight, is back for another year after three seasons as a star tackle. He's a dental student and Coach Hauser has switched him to guard where he promises to be just as good. Henry Weber, a 1942 squadman, is slated to play the other guard. Two local boys—John Geist and Fred Madsen are top reserves. They're both 180 pounders.

Center also will be well fortified. Johnny Kuchied, a 203-pound freshman from Duluth and Steve Sihanoff, a tough 185-pound navy trainee from Wilmerding, Pa., are the leading candidates for the post.

The backfield potency hinges around probably the best quarterback in the conference—Bill Garnaas. He can pass, kick, catch passes and run with the ball and unless he's handicapped by injuries last season, he'll be the sparkplug of the entire team. Bill is now in the naval unit and says he's in great shape—something which the entire coaching staff hopes with great fervancy is true.

After Garnaas come about half a dozen backs of about equal ability. Among them are Paul Sutton, 175, Bill Peterson, 165, Loren Palmer, 175, "Brick" Waldron, 185, Chuck Avery, 180; Hoyt Moncreif, 175 and Wayne Williams, 180. Avery and Waldron are transfers from Michigan, and scarcely balance the "trade" which sent Bill Daley to the Wolverines, both are considered highly by the coaches. Palmer and Peterson, are freshmen, while Williams was a squadman last year who showed much promise. Moncreif is a navy man who hails from Louisiana and has made a fine impression at halfback. Sutton, also from the service ranks, rates close to Garnaas as a passer. Palmer, however, looks like the best ball-carrier of the lot.

There you have the Gophers—subject to such revisions as naval and marine requirements may determine.

Crisler Moans Lack of Line

Says Backs Can't Go Without Interference.

By JERRY LISKA

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—(AP)—Fritz Crisler is cagy enough to know that he has two strikes on him if opponents keep calling Michigan a dream team. Crisler says emphatically that his squad isn't that good, particularly after the loss of its great guard, Julius Franks.

Removal of Franks, 190-pound Negro star, from this football season because of illness is really something to deflate any coach. Aside from being Michigan's steadiest performer last season, Franks is generally credited with providing the turning point of the 1942 contest of Notre Dame with a tooth-rattling tackle that give the Wolvermes a third period fumble and touchdown.

Moreover, his loss leaves Michigan with experienced talent only at center where Mervin Pregulman and Fred Negus, the latter from Wisconsin, are top performers.

"We've no ends, tackles or guards with much experience," moans Crisler, "and the best backs in the world can't go any place unless they get past the line of scrimmage."

The backs? Crisler's eyes light up on that subject. If he doesn't have a dream team he most certainly has a dream backfield.

Holdovers from the 1942 Michigan backfield are Capt. Paul White and Bob Wiese. Marine and navy trainees on the campus include Bill Daley, the one-man team from Minnesota, and Elroy (Crazy Legs) Hirsch and Jack Wink of Wisconsin's western conference runner-up.

Hirsch is lined up for the tailback spot once occupied by Michigan's "Terrible Tommies," Harmon and Kuzma. White will be at the other halfback, with Daley or Wiese at fullback. Wink currently is on the injured list, and Wiese is being groomed at the quarterback job, too.

With this type of running power, Michigan may gain its first Big Ten title under Crisler. It also may be the year for the Wolverines to win back the coveted little brown jug from Minnesota, although a Gopher, Daley, may have to do it.

That would nevertheless be sweet for Crisler, one-time Minnesota coach, who has lost five straight games to the Gophers.

Despite large scale importations of navy and marine talent, Michigan's attack will follow closely the Crisler plan of a single wingback formation with plenty of spinners and a constant effort at deception. Even with a green line, the Wolverines will be tough.

SEASON OPENS

CHAMPAIGN, Ill.—(INS)—The midwestern football season will open Saturday in Champaign with a game between the University of Illinois and the Camp Grant service team. Coach Ray Eliot of the Illini has named a starting lineup of five freshmen, four sophomores and only one junior and one senior.

Bucyrus Preps For Tiffin Game

BUCYRUS—Starting the weeding out process, Coach Nick Wasylik today announced a tentative lineup for the opening of the grid schedule at Tiffin, Sept. 17. Coincident with the naming of a tentative lineup was the announcement of the acceptance by Rev. David Mumford, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church to the post of line coach for the squad, as assistant to Coach Wasylik.

Mail Ballots on Spring Practice

COLUMBUS—(UP)—H. R. Townsend, Ohio High School Athletic commissioner, said that ballots would be mailed soon, "possibly today," to Ohio high school football coaches who will vote whether or not to discontinue spring football practice.

Townsend said the results of the voting would be announced the first week in October at a meeting of the state athletic board of control.

The board ordered the vote after the Ohio High School Football Coaches' association petitioned it to eliminate spring practice because of the coaching shortage and the interference with other spring athletics.

Pennant Race Near Decision

Cards Need Nine Games And Yankees 16.

By LAWTON CARVER

NEW YORK—(INS)—The major league pennant races that you have been watching since last spring will be over in two weeks at the most. The St. Louis Cardinals can clinch their National league flag the latter part of next week. The Yankees will have to travel a little farther.

Reduced to numerals, the Cardinals need only nine more victories regardless of what the Cincinnati Reds may do, including the vague possibility of the latter winning all their remaining games.

The Yankees need 16 more victories on the same basis.

Meantime, every time chief rivals lose a game the leaders advance that much nearer to the pennant even while they themselves suffer their losses.

So actually the pennant campaigns that many thought would never start not only started but are going along to their conclusion and with the way things are going in Europe it seems likely that baseball will open as scheduled for business at the same old stand next season. Our foreign department guesses the war in Europe will be over by the middle of next year at the latest and that it could be concluded as early as Christmas. We have approached so close to victory in any case that baseball will be in better shape to start the 1944 campaign than it was starting out this year. Or so it seems.

Not many more baseball players will be lost now to the armed forces and that was the main cause of concern. There never has been any doubt as to attendance if reasonably good teams could be mustered.

As far as the present campaign is concerned it has run strictly to form all the way. Nearly everybody picked the Yankees and Cardinals to repeat and there never has been any doubt as to whether they would do it once they began to make their run for the wire.

In the late stages they have increased their edges from week to week to completely dominate the opposition.

However, there is one strange thing about it all and that is the liklihood of the National league champions completing their conquest much ahead of the American league. In recent years the Yanks have won their pennant almost in mid-season. This time they will do it a week or so behind the Cards. All this, of course, is based on the assumption that the leaders in the two leagues won't go into a sudden tailspin as one of the contenders comes on with a rush. No such combination of events are likely.

Both the Yankees and the Cardinals are sound clubs—hustling, aggressive, well-manned and experienced. There is no reason to believe that they will beat themselves. There is no reason either to believe that any of the rest can come on now at this late point in the campaigns.

* * *

Aside from all else they have the tremendous edge of finishing out the string on their home grounds. No matter what might happen as they bounce around in the next few days they have sufficient edge to stay in front—and well in front—until they get home and can really make their finishing spurt.

Wildcat Now, But How Long

OTTO GRAHAM, Northwestern's great backfield star last year, is back on deck this season, but he has a Navy V-5 rating and there is no telling whether he will remain a Wildcat or not. The Waukegan, Ill., youth was a star in the recent All-Star football game in Chicago. (International)

Sport Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(AP)—You may never know where the next big game is coming from this football season. . . . How about this one, for instance:—North Texas Aggies vs. Southwestern (Texas) Sept. 18? . . . Well, Southwestern may start seven members of last year's championship Texas U. team and the Aggies could field an entire team of former T. C. U. players with such guys as Doyle Caraway, Texas Tech's little All-American, and Red Maley, the S. M. U. passer, in reserve. . . . Mike McGrath, who trains Lieut. A. G. Vanderbilt's second-string horses, used to be Alf's first string chauffeur. Mike once drove cross country from New York to Los Angeles and got there ahead of his boss, who took a train. . . . But so far he hasn't been able to get that kind of speed out of his nags.

Bob Margarita, Brown's star halfback last season, is manager and first-string catcher on one of the baseball teams at Lowry Field, Colorado, where he is prepping for aerial gunnery school. . . . In a recent game, Bob was surprised to see that one of the batsmen stepping up to the plate was his former teammate, Bob Priestly. . . . They shook hands, greeted each other warmly, then resumed play. . . . On the first pitch, Priestly smashed a triple and it's reported that there was a distinct chill when Bob and Bob passed each other again.

Dr. Bill Jacobs, president of Presbyterian college, figures there will be enough football in the south this fall so he can find recipients for his annual awards to the star blocking backs. . . . And, of course, he could always present one to the general who blocked the army specialized training boys out of college football. . . . The Camp Wheeler, Ga., Spokes collected $7,311.86 for winning the national semi-pro baseball tournament at Wichita, Kan., last month and the total prize money ran to a record $20,284.50. . . . Pauline Betz, the women's tennis champ, will remain in New York this winter to study for her master's degree in economics at Columbia. . . . The recent harness-race meeting at Empire City figured to go $25,000 into the red but the crowds on Labor day week-end removed most of the deficit.

Before the baseball game at Baltimore even started last Sunday three patrons came around to ask for their money back. . . . Asked what was wrong, they explained: "We just told the taxi driver to take us to the game and he brought us here. We meant football, not baseball." . . . P. S.: The Packers were playing the Redskins the same afternoon.

Johnny Kerr, who hit only .218 in the International league this season, walloped a home run yesterday in his first game with the Giants. . . . Somebody must have thrown him a Kerrve ball.

Wildcats Run Anxious Fever

Await Posting of Navy V-12 Grades on Stars.

CHICAGO—(AP)—Northwestern, picked to be among the Big Ten's leading football title threats this fall because of the strong array of gridders included in the university's Navy V-12 program, is running a fever of anxiety these days.

It is all because monthly grades for the V-12 unit still are to be posted. Upon the grades hinge eligibility of a number of likely candidates.

Meantime, Coach Lynn Waldorf is conducting a search for an understudy to Quarterback Lynne McNutt, while giving a couple of other veterans from last year—Otto Graham and Don Buffmire—long drills at kicking.

At Illinois, injuries continued to cut ranks of the young Illini who open the season with Camp Grant Saturday. Bud Ward, end from El Paso, Tex., and Lester Joop, tackle from LaSalle-Peru, Ill., were the latest to be sidelined.

Purdue also was hit when Ed Cycenas, only major letter winner to return, twisted his knee.

Iowa ran through signal drills in preparation for today's promised scrimmage, Indiana worked on passing and blocking and Wisconsin held a long workout that included scrimmage.

Return of Wayne Red Williams, discharged from the Marines because of physical disability, brightened the backfield picture at Minnesota. There also were reports Ohio State would get back Paul Sarringhaus from the army for similar reasons, but Coach Paul Brown said it was all news to him.

Michigan ran through a scrimmage with Fullback Bob Wiese again playing quarterback.

Fighting Men to See World Series

CHICAGO—(AP)—America's fighting men all over the world are going to see baseball's world series this year.

They will see it in a two-reel, 22-minute sound film that will be distributed to all foreign bases, Lew Fonseca, promotional director of the American league and producer of its annual motion pictures, said today.

Filming of the 1943 series—virtually a cinch to be a rematch of New York's Yankees and the Champion St. Louis Cardinals—will be undertaken by the American league in cooperation with the war and navy departments and two sponsors, Fonseca said.

No-Hitter Proves Elusive

Whit Wyatt Misses Mark Fourth Time.

By JUDSON BAILEY

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

THE major leagues are approaching the end of their second successive season without a no-hit pitching performance, perhaps proving that as much luck as skill enters into such classics.

There is still time for some hurler to slide into the groove, but few of the 100-plus no-hitters in big league history have come this late in the season.

Ten pitchers have come within one hit of ringing the gong this year.

The latest is Whitlow Wyatt of the Brooklyn Dodgers, who never has hurled a no-hitter, but who yesterday barely missed this goal for the fourth time in his major league career.

He stopped the Boston Braves, 3-0, for his seventh straight success and 11th of the season, but a single to rightfield in the first inning by Charley Workman kept Wyatt from entering the hallowed hall of pitching fame.

Lady Luck really gave him the brushoff in 1932 and again two years ago. In the first case he was pitching for the Chicago White Sox against the St. Louis Browns and had a no-hitter with two out in the ninth inning until Ted Gullic spoiled it with a single.

In 1941 he had a perfect game, no hits and no runner reaching first base, with one out in the ninth at Boston only to have the Braves wreck it with two hits. Last year a homer by Johnny Mize kept him from a no-hitter against the Giants.

Besides the contest at Brooklyn, only two other games were on the program yesterday, both in the National league.

The St. Louis Cardinals handed Rip Sewell, Pittsburgh's 20-game winner, his eighth defeat 5-1 with Stan Musial hitting two homers.

A homer by Babe Dahlgren, his fifth of the year, provided the winning margin for the Philadelphia Phillies 3-2 triumph over the New York Giants. Ace Adams made his 62nd relief appearance for the Giants for a record.

Regional Softball Titles Decided

CLEVELAND—(AP)—The Cincinnati Coca Cola mens team and the Erin Brew girls of Cleveland will represent the east central region in national softball championship competition at Detroit next week, the result of victories in tourney finals here.

The Coca Colas defeated the Napoleon, O., Rausch Roofers 1-0 last night, their third straight tournament victory without a loss. The Roofers, defeated once in preliminary play, advanced to the title game by eliminating Cleveland Monorails 1-0 earlier yesterday.

Conducted on a two defeats and out basis, the tourney opened Sunday.

The Erin Brew girls whipped Dayton's Sucher Packers twice, 3-1 and 1-0 in the finals, after an earlier defeat by the same team.

THE 3rd WAR LOAN DRIVE STARTS —TO BACK THE INVASION!

15 BILLION DOLLARS (NON-BANKING QUOTA)

What you will be asked to do—

MARK WELL the date—Thursday, September 9th. For on that day, you must answer to your country's call.

On that day, the 3rd War Loan Drive opens. To you—and to every other true American—a clarion call goes forth to rally to the support of our flag.

You will be asked to back our fighting forces to the very limit of your resources. You will be asked to go ALL-OUT FOR INVASION by investing in EXTRA War Bonds—more War Bonds than you perhaps think you can possibly afford.

To meet the national quota, every individual in the country who earns a wage or draws an income or has accumulated funds must invest, if he possibly can, in at least one EXTRA $100 War Bond. Those who can, must invest more—thousands of dollars' worth more. Each and every one must do his full part.

Scrape up the money from every source you can . . . turn in all the loose cash you carry with you . . . dig out what you had tucked away "just in case." Go without pleasures, luxuries, even necessities this September. And give our fighting men the things they need to fight with—and win.

These men are throwing everything they have into this fierce invasion push. They are giving their blood, their lives. No one can put a price on such courage, self-sacrifice, devotion. But you can show you're with them to the limit! You can say it with Bonds . . . EXTRA Bonds this month.

World's Safest Investments

For this 3rd War Loan, you will be offered your choice of various government securities. Choose the one that fits your requirements.

United States War Savings Bonds Series "E"; gives you back $4 for every $3 when the bond matures. Interest: 2.9% a year, compounded semi-annually, if held to maturity. Denominations: $25, $50, $100, $500, $1,000. Redemption: Anytime 60 days after issue date. Price: 75% of maturity value.

ITALIANS VOW NOT TO SHOOT AT INVADERS

British Soldiers Tell How They Were Feted as Captives In Italy.

By DANIEL DELUCE
(Representing the Combined United States Press)
(Distributed by International News Service)

SOMEWHERE IN ITALY, Sept. 7.—(Delayed)—Two British soldiers who landed in Italy six days ahead of the Eighth army and obtained a promise from Italian troops not to fire on the invasion force were liberated from prison today by civilian guards.

A former London bobby and a Yorkshire school teacher calmly told the story of the virtually complete breakdown of the Italian army's will to resist.

"If the Eighth army's invasion had been delayed a couple of days longer," they said, "we could have persuaded the Italians to surrender intact. As it was, any number of Italians wanted to cross the Messina straits and give themselves up in Sicily. It seemed as if all of them were plotting to do that."

The two ex-prisoners are Lance Corporal Eric Hill of Banff, Scotland, who once patrolled a police beat near Buckingham palace, and Gunner Harold Brook Hodgson of Bradford, Yorkshire. They participated in a reconnaissance raid on the southern Calabrian coast on the night of Aug. 28 which ran afoul of a German convoy of lorried infantry that forced the raiders to fight a pitched battle on the beach in the darkness and then scatter into the hills.

"We've no idea what happened to the others," they said, "but we were taken to town and the Italian troops and civilians practically feted us. The soldiers said: 'You can be sure we won't fire on any Englishmen who land in Italy.' The civilians told us they detested the Germans, whom they accused of looting their homes."

Hill and Hodgson said that on the day they were captured Allied planes raided the town and two British prisoners and 37 civilians were reported killed.

Nevertheless, Italians pressed gifts of grapes and figs on them and soldiers excitedly discussed with them ways and means of quitting the war.

After the invasion day, they were transferred to a civil jail, where the inmates included two political prisoners. One was a Trieste business man, arrested as an English spy on a trip through Calabria province because he had an English dictionary in his baggage. His sentence already was over, but he was not released because there was no rail transport to the north by which he could leave the province.

The second political prisoner was a farmer with strong social democratic views who was jailed for declaring that Anglo-American intervention was necessary to end the corruption of provincial government. Mothers with suckling infants, who had stolen small amounts of food, and boys who had snatched shoes from military stores were among the other prisoners.

A German artillery detachment left two days ago, but the guards did not release Hill and Hodgson until British Bren gun-carriers passed through this morning. Your correspondent, driving in a staff car with British scouts, met the two prisoners standing in the center of the town in the midst of a crowd which cheered and threw kisses at our small column.

PROGRAM SET

Books Fair To Be Staged at Library Next Week.

A Book Fair for fourth, fifth and sixth grade teachers will be held next week at the Mansfield public library, Miss Mary Lorimer, children's librarian, announced today.

Books that supplement the history and geography books in those grades have been chosen for the fair. There will also be a display of books on music, art, and special activities.

Approximately 200 books will be included in the display which will be open every afternoon and evening next week. Posters for the fair were made by Mrs. Lois Pennell.

Special teachers' meetings have also been planned. Fourth grade teachers are to meet Tuesday, fifth grade teachers on Wednesday, and sixth grade teachers Thursday.

EXPECT JURY TO GET CASE TODAY

The case of Jack Theohor, charged with selling beer to minors, was expected to go to jury in juvenile court today.

A jury of nine men and three women was selected yesterday to try the case. The prosecution rested after presentation of testimony of 10 witnesses, three of them city police officers, and the remaining seven boys under 18 years of age who testified they had purchased beer at the cafe operated by Theohor.

Last of the 11 witnesses called by defense attorney James V. Will was the defendant. Closing arguments to the jury were made by acting Prosecutor John C. O'Donnell and Will before the noon recess.

VITAL STATISTICS

CRESTLINE — Six deaths and ten births were reported for Crestline and vicinity during the month of August, according to the report of the statistical clerk, Marie Schill.

VICTORY GARDENERS URGED TO FILE ENTRIES FOR SHOW EARLY

Richland county's Victory gardeners and fruit and flower growers today were urged to file their entry blanks for the Victory Garden Harvest show Saturday and Sunday as soon as possible with Mrs. M. O. Doolittle, 456 West Fourth street, the entries chairman.

The garden show committee said it will avoid confusion Saturday morning if many of the exhibitors will have their displays in place at the Armory by Friday night. The show opens at 1 p. m. Saturday and will continue through 10:30 p. m. Sunday.

A number of educational booths, including an herb mart, a display of live bees at work, and an exhibit showing methods of storing vegetables for winter, will help make the show interesting to gardeners and orchardists.

Besides the displays of fruit, vegetables, and flowers, there will be exhibits of canned and dehydrated foods and bird houses. Judges in the preserved foods classification will be Miss Charlotte Ferris of the Westinghouse home economics division; Mrs. Pauline Treisch of the Ohio Fuel Gas company, and Mrs. Helen Baer, Farm Security administration home economist.

The Navy Mothers club and Blue Star Mothers will have a refreshment stand at the show, and Smart's studio will provide musical entertainment.

Admission tickets are being sold by garden club members for 20 cents each, five cents below the admission price at the door. Net proceeds of the show will go into the county's national war fund.

REPORTS NEW NAZI CRUELTY

War Prisoner Says Son of Ex-Austrian Official Was Beaten To Death.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Kurt Von Schuschnigg, son of the former Austrian chancellor, was beaten to death by Nazi storm troopers early last year in a concentration camp near Berlin, according to Austrian Actian, Inc., unofficial Austrian organization here.

Ferdinand Czernin, chairman of Austrian action, made public yesterday copies of an affidavit, containing an eye-witness account of the youth's death. Czernin said the affidavit was signed by Ludwig Victor Von Tohathy, an Austrian, now a war prisoner held at Ellis Island.

Czernon quoted the statement as saying:

"On Feb. 23, 1942, while at work and carrying a stone of 70 pounds, young Schuschnigg collapsed and was beaten to death on the orders of S. S. Sturmfuehrer 'Eiserne Gustav' (which was the name we knew him by.)

"Chancellor Schuschnigg and I were present, and we tried to intertere, were knocked senseless."

GO TO SCHOOL

Housing Project Residents Win First Round of Fight.

CLEVELAND — (NS) — School children of the Lake Shore Village housing project today spent their first day in school after the Euclid board of education lifted the ban against their attendance without tuition until settlement is made with the Federal Public Housing Authority.

Meanwhile, parents of three of the children banned from the schools, sued the board, filing charges of "arbitrary, capricious and discriminatory" action in keeping the children from school.

The board has asked a payment of $4.50 per week for high school students and $3.00 a week for younger children.

WAR WORK LAGS

Production Behind Schedule In 147 Ohio, Kentucky Factories.

CLEVELAND — (NS) — The jubilance of Ohio's war workers over the Italian surrender was tempered today by announcement of Frank M. Aldridge, deputy War Production board regional director, that 147 war factories in the region are behind on production schedules.

The companies, employing more than 100,000 persons, are located largely in Cleveland, Dayton, Cincinnati and Louisville, Ky.

BERLIN CLAIMS DUCE DRAGGED FROM PALACE

Nazi Version of Mussolini's Downfall Says King Planned Coup.

(By Associated Press)

The Berlin radio broadcast today its version of Benito Mussolini's downfall—that Mussolini was "dragged by brute force" from the Royal palace, strapped to a stretcher and spirited away in an ambulance.

His removal on July 25, the broadcast said, was the result of a secretly-planned coup d'etat between King Vittorio Emanuele and the present Premier, Pietro Badoglio.

"It seems to be certain," the broadcast said, that Il Duce was taken to Ponza Island, in the Gulf of Gaeta about 75 miles southeast of Rome.

The radio gave this version of Mussolini's "abduction":

Il Duce requested an interview with the king to request full powers to halt sabotage, the "cowardly desertion" of generals and other officers of the air force in Sicily, the "unsocial attitude" of superior Italian officers and corruption in the army.

He was taken completely by surprise when, at the close of the interview, the king said:

"I must inform you that your successor x x x x has already been designated and in fact entered office. This man is Marshal Badoglio. Put yourself at his disposal."

Mussolini answered that he felt strong enough, in order to save the Italian people, to oppose the crown and if necessary even the army.

As he left, he noticed that his car and special guard had been removed from the palace entrance and ordered servants to bring it.

Instead, a colonel approached him and said:

"Your excellency, I have received an order to arrest you. Please enter this car."

The German broadcast said that the Fascist militia had been crippled "by the traitors" and that Mussolini was powerless to resist.

It termed the abduction "criminal and disgraceful" and said it was brought about by "a clique of traitors" by which "disgrace and dishonor were brought upon the Italian people."

PLANT REFUSES TO HIRE WOMEN

Draft Deferments for Young Men Under Investigation.

CLEVELAND — (NS) — One of Cleveland's largest war plants today was under investigation for reportedly refusing to hire women, yet receiving job deferments for a large number of young male employes.

The women-power committee of the war manpower commission brought the complaint, requesting the investigation.

In the case of the war plant charged with refusing female employment, one member of the committee cited the case of one youth who had received four draft deferments, although he had had no experience in factory work before the war. He operates a lathe.

FIRING HEARD

Sounds of Battle From Point Off French Coast Reported.

SAN SEBASTAIN, Spain — (AP) — Sounds of heavy firing, apparently coming from a point off the French coast, were heard late last night in this town on the Bay of Biscay near the Spanish-French frontier.

The noise stirred speculation that Allied warships might have been exchanging fire with German coastal batteries.

GETS DOCTOR

WILLARD — Dr. J. Simon of Philadelphia, a physician and surgeon, has been assigned to this area by the state office of procurement. He is expected to arrive here early next week.

Several months ago an appeal was made to the state board to provide another physician in Willard when two left for military service.

WELCOME GROUP

Committee To Entertain New Shelby Residents.

SHELBY—A group of church members has organized a committee here to welcome new residents coming to Shelby.

L. D. Reynolds is serving as president. Leo McGaw is vice president, and Edgar Eckert, secretary.

DISMISSED FROM HOSPITAL

GALION—H. E. McClurg, who had both legs broken in a farm team accident eleven weeks ago, and has been confined to Mansfield General hospital since that time, was dismissed Tuesday.

PARENTS OF SON

CRESTLINE — Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Shepard of 319 North Wiley street, are the parents of a son born Wednesday at Emergency hospital.

Society

Past Matrons Have Meeting

A dessert luncheon was given this week for members of the Past Matrons club at the Masonic Temple. Hostesses were Mrs. Virginia Mather, Mrs. Norma Miller and Mrs. Sara Ford.

Mrs. Leora Carrier led in devotions. During the business meeting, plans were made with relation to the Crestline canteen.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Miss Ada Schuler, 68 Marion avenue. Miss Perl Wierman and Mrs. Carrier are associate hostesses.

GOP Ladies at Mackinac

Only three women members of the Republican post-war advisory council which has ended its meetings at Mackinac Island, Mich., are shown as they conferred. Left to right are Mrs. Dudley C. Hay of Michigan, national committeewoman; Frances P. Bolton, congresswoman from Ohio, and Mrs. Bertha Baur of Illinois. The Republican planners completed their sessions by adopting a foreign policy resolution calling for "responsible" American participation in a world "co-operative organization" to prevent future wars.

JOINS APPEAL FOR TAX CUT

Labor Union Requests Bricker To Call Special Session on Sales Levy.

A Mansfield CIO labor organization joined a number of Ohio legislators today in requesting Gov. John W. Bricker to call a special session of the legislature to reduce the state sales tax from three to two per cent.

In a letter to the governor, Local 758 of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America urged the sales tax reduction, asserting that "We feel that this would especially benefit those with small fixed incomes and workers who fall in the group of four million people who, the president says, still work for less than 40 cents an hour."

The union, said to represent workers in seven Mansfield war plants, also asked Gov. Bricker to raise all old age pensions to the maximum of $40 a month to enable the aged Ohioans to meet the higher cost of living. Some pensioners now receive $40 if they have no other income and no relatives to help them.

A poll of 44 members of the Ohio legislature conducted recently by the Columbus Citizen showed sentiment in favor of a sales tax reduction in view of the growing state surplus and higher federal taxes. The governor has said he has no intention of calling a special session of the legislature, citing the legislators' refusal to take the sales tax off meals.

Meanwhile, the state treasurer's report today showed sales tax receipts through Sept. 4 totaled $38,884,505, an increase of $1,627,991 over the corresponding months of 1942. Richland county's increase for the same period was approximately $18,000.

OFFICERS ELECTED

GALION—Elected to head the Galion Garden club as its president, Mrs. Edna Flowers will serve with the following officers who also were chosen at the annual meeting: vice president, Mrs. T. F. Harrington; second vice president, Mrs. Clarence Gardner; secretary, Mrs. C. A. Ernst; treasurer, Mrs. Walter Hessenauer.

Neither leg was fractured.

START PROJECTS

Workmen Begin Fifth Street Resurfacing, Station Job.

Workmen today have started two city projects which Service-Safety Director Fred B. Wolff said he hopes will be completed before cold weather.

The Mansfield Asphalt Paving company was working on East Fifth street which will be resurfaced from Main street to the Pennsylvania railroad, and Frank Beymer, Mansfield contractor, was starting remodeling of the North Main street pumping station.

Work on the East Fifth street project was held up until the Baltimore & Ohio railroad relocated its switch tracks in the street. The street probably will be completed early in October, Wolff said.

Contract for the North Main pumping station remodeling, expected to cost nearly $7,000, was awarded yesterday, two months after the bids were opened. The bids were above the city's estimate and council had to appropriate more money to get the job started.

ICE DELIVERIES CUT BY COMPANY

Home delivery of ice by the National Ice company has been discontinued in some parts of the city because of the labor problem, H. J. Thoma, secretary, said today.

Thoma was unable to say how many routes had been discontinued. He said that several factory workers had been helping with delivery during their spare hours, but that there were not enough to continue all of the routes.

STILL CRITICAL

CLEVELAND —(AP)— The condition of Archbishop Joseph Schrembs, 77-year-old bishop of the Cleveland Catholic diocese, remained critical today. Attendants at St. John's hospital reported no improvement in the past 24 hours.

HELL AND HIGH WATER

CHAPTER XVII

Bob turned. Cass' rifle covered him. A few yards away stood Rush Greer, his revolver alone on the lone cowboy.

Bob's hands lifted skyward. Greer moved out of the brush and lifted his revolver from the holster.

Cass Hickory was not satisfied that Lee had been relieved of all his weapons. "Make sure he hasn't another," he said waving a hand toward the captive.

The red-bearded man ran his hand over Lee's body. "It's the only one he has," he reported.

"You come here alone?" Cass barked.

Bob thought fast. All he could do was to play for time. That would not save him, but it might give him an extra hour. "Wouldn't be likely, would it?" he drawled.

He kept the nervousness out of his voice though a cold sickness ran through him. The gloom of his swamp with its rank growth and fetid miasma hung on him like a weight, freezing his stomach. It would have been bad enough to face almost certain death in the bright sunlight but there was something horrible about meeting it here. He pictured his body flung into the slimy green waters of the bayou. None of his friends knowing what had become of him. Though hope had died in him, he set his teeth to drive back the panic rising in his throat. He must stand up to these outlaws and face the worst they could do.

"Only Sugg's and one other horse came along the trail," Greer told the others.

"He came alone," Cass said contemptuously. "The sort of a thing the fool would do."

They guided him to the trail and along it back to the clearing. Cass followed Bob, his rifle occasionally prodding the trapped man between the shoulders. Lee walked that hundred yards as a man does who is going to the gallows. At the end of it there could be nothing for him but the end of his earthly life. Sugg could not save him this time. He dared not even if he wished for his own future depended on blotting out the only witness connecting him to the Hickorys.

Past the first shock of his capture, the hardihood of Lee began to dominate his fear. The resolution to go through whatever might come without weakening stiffened him. To ask for mercy would be useless and only give his captors a savage pleasure.

Before they reached the clearing Cass called jubilantly, "Welcome a visitor, boys."

Jake Hickory and Hiram Sugg were startled at sight of Lee. Jake roared, "Where in hell did he come from?"

"Just dropped in to pay a neighborly visit," Cass jeered.

"How did he get here?" Jake demanded. "Is he alone?"

Cass surveyed Sugg with angry resentment. "He followed Mr. Sugg's tracks, looks like. They're plain enough for a blind man to read. Our careful friend figured it would be terrible for anybody to know he associates with us, then he leads this guy to us."

"Why bring him here?" Sugg asked harshly. "Why not keep him where you found him?"

"So he wouldn't see Mr. Sugg?" Cass sneered. "I thought it time we should all be even steven in this thing. We don't aim to pull any chestnuts outa the fire for anybody else. You tipped us off on the train hold-up You who told us it was a cinch. Why shouldn't he see you here with us?"

"You know why," Sugg retorted, his cold eyes reflecting the rage in him. "Who saved you from Carson's posse last week? How could I do that if I was suspected?"

"You say you saved us," Cass flung back.

"How could we forget it, you keep reminding us every chance you get. If you ask me, you're thinking of yore precious hide first."

"What I've been thinking, too," Jake agreed, "You're full of hush-hush stuff to keep Mr. Sugg outa this."

Sugg spoke quietly: "I made a mistake, tying up with a bunch of lunkheads who bungle everything. They buy figured cloth for masks. They leave one of the masks for the first sheriff that shows up to find. They camp in open country near the river close to the road to McAlester and send a master into town for me to come out and tell them what to do. If I didn't look out for the fools they would be nabbed in two days. I had better let them fry in their own grease."

Rush Greer cut in: "Don't get sore, Mr. Sugg. Cass is hasty; he's only a kid. We're beholden to you. No use us flying off the handle. Question right now is, what to do with this meddling cowhand."

"That's right," assented Jake. "How did you get this nosey bird?"

"His horse was back of some bushes near the trail," Cass explained. "We stuck around till he showed up."

"Sure there is nobody with him?" Sugg asked.

"No other tracks, except yours," Cass said.

"One of you better go back to the bayou and keep guard there to be sure nobody else comes. You go, Cass."

"Go yourself if you're scared," Cass said insolently.

Sugg moved toward him slowly, hard eyes boring into the rebellious youth. "When I say go, you go." The words snapped from Sugg's thin-lipped mouth.

Before the younger Hickory moved Jake came to Sugg's support.

"Better go, Cass. We don't want any more popping in on us. If anybody shows up, cut back here quick. Rush will bring in the horses so we'll be ready for a quick getaway."

Cass glared at Sugg, a mulish look on his boyish face. He wanted to hold to the challenge he had flung at the man but he did not quite dare do it. Jake's interference gave him an out, and he took it.

"All right," he growled. "But I tell you he came alone."

After his brother and Greer had gone Jake walked up to the captive, brushed off his hat and brought the blue barrel of his .45 down on the uncovered head. A jagged bolt of lightning crashed through Bob's head. He swayed on his heel and his knees buckled. He sank to the ground.

"If it's information you want from him, you choose a queer way of getting it," Sugg said coldly. "He'll be out for half an hour."

Hickory glared down at the prone figure. "He had it coming I told him I would get him."

"You couldn't wait to make him talk—to find out if there's a posse out. Don't you use your head?"

"He'll talk soon as he wakes up," Jake boasted. "I can make birds like him loosen up."

He turned to the fire and gathered the smoldering embers into a pile, put on more wood and thrust the end of a running iron into the coals.

Sugg watched sullenly. He did not like this situation. Yet he was in no position to interfere.

"Thought the Indian blood in you was Choctaw and not Apache," he said with careless contempt.

Jake flushed angrily for he considered himself a white man and not an Indian.

"That's enough from you, Sugg," he retorted. "You can't ride us and get away with it."

"Don't threaten me, Jake," Sugg said coldly. "If you're not satisfied say so and we'll settle the matter."

The outlaw looked at the other venemously. He distrusted Sugg and was jealous of the drive that made him leader of the gang. In him there surged a heady desire to accept the challenge, but he could not quite bring his nerve to carry it out. There was a steady deadliness in Sugg's unshining eyes that daunted him.

"No use going off half cocked," he growled. "We got to hang together till we're out of this."

Lee gave a low moan. His eyes flickered open and closed again. Hickory caught him by the shirt-front close to his throat and shook him violently. He jerked Bob to his feet, but the youth collapsed.

Says U. S. Must Rely on Grains To Feed Europe

ITHACA, N. Y.—(U.P.)—Dr. W. I. Myers, Cornell university's agricultural economics department head, estimates that crops grown in the United States during 1942 if fed directly to humans would have been sufficient to provide energy for a population of 400-450 millions.

If additional millions are to be fed, Myers, added, it must be largely on wheat, dry beans and peas, soybeans and corn. Any thought of feeding the millions of Europe on our luxurious diet must be discarded. The grain diet, he continued, is not as palatable or as nourishing as one with more livestock products, but it will prevent starvation and provide maintenance until Europeon food production can be restored.

"Ample stocks of wheat, soybeans, beans, and other storable foods should be built up and maintained in the U. S. to insure a food supply for European people at the end of the war. Most of the hundreds of millions of people who have been under Axis control will need some food," Myers declared.

Better utilization of our present food sources is the answer to the present food problem, the Cornell expert believes. The only way to save much food is to increase direct human consumption of grain and crop products and reduce civilian use of meat, he said.

WED AND FULFILL VOW

SWARTHMORE, Pa.—(U.P.)—When Helen Louis Paulson, Swarthmore and Vahey S. Kupell, Akron, O., were married here, they fulfilled a vow made in 1890 by their grandfathers, Steele Leonards and Sava Iliades, respectively, while fellow students at the Armenian Seminary, Beirut, that one day two of their descendants would wed. The grandfathers did not live to see their wish come true, because they were killed by Turks at a ministers' convention in Tarsus in 1908.

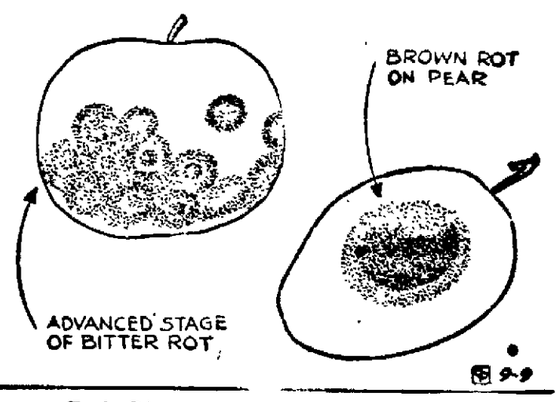
Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH



Fruit Diseases In the Victory Garden.

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released by Central Press Ass'n.

The price one must pay for the privilege of growing certain fruits in the Victory garden is constant vigilance in guarding against disease.

One serious disease is bitter rot, which affects apples, pears and quince. The sudden appearance of the disease just when the fruit is almost ready to harvest, its rapid spread and its destructiveness are disheartening to the professional grower to say nothing of the amateur.

The rotted spots on the fruit, shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph, may appear at any time from June to September. The most favorable condition for the development of the disease exists during hot, damp weather when the fruit is nearing maturity. The number of rot spots on a single fruit may vary from one to several hundred.

Control includes hand picking and careful disposal of infected fruit; spraying with Bordeaux mixture, the number of sprays and the time of first application depending largely upon weather conditions. General sanitation including removal of all dead or cankered branches, as well as mummied fruit, since the fungus causing the rot lives over winter.

Another disease to be on the alert against is brown rot, which is more common on pears than on apples and frequently causes serious loss of crop when pears are allowed to ripen on the tree.

Brown rot appears as a spot which is not a mushy decay. It gradually enlarges and becomes a brown spot, such as shown on the illustration of the diseased pear in the accompanying Garden-Graph. The infected fruit later mummifies. Orchard sanitation is important for control of brown rot.

That's As Easy As A B C

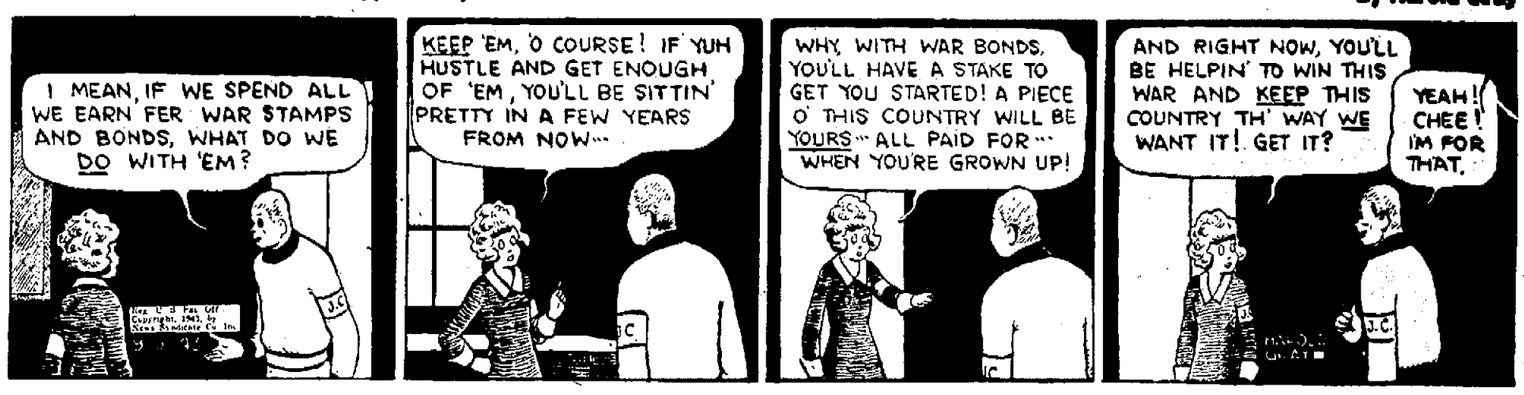
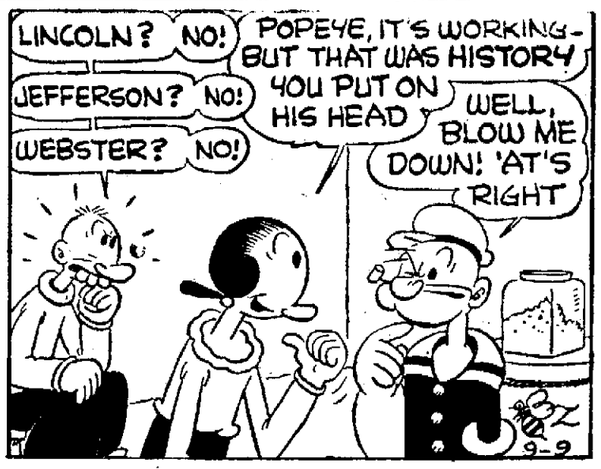
LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE—Golden Opportunity. By Harold Gray



I MEAN, IF WE SPEND ALL WE EARN FER WAR STAMPS AND BONDS, WHAT DO WE DO WITH 'EM?
KEEP 'EM, 'O COURSE! IF YUH HUSTLE AND GET ENOUGH OF 'EM, YOU'LL BE SITTIN' PRETTY IN A FEW YEARS FROM NOW---
WHY, WITH WAR BONDS, YOU'LL HAVE A STAKE TO GET YOU STARTED! A PIECE O' THIS COUNTRY WILL BE YOURS--ALL PAID FOR--- WHEN YOU'RE GROWN UP!
AND RIGHT NOW, YOU'LL BE HELPIN' TO WIN THIS WAR AND KEEP THIS COUNTRY TH' WAY WE WANT IT! GET IT?
YEAH! CHEE! I'M FOR THAT.

GEORGE ASHINGTON?



LINCOLN? NO!
JEFFERSON? NO!
WEBSTER? NO!
POPEYE, IT'S WORKING- BUT THAT WAS HISTORY! YOU PUT ON HIS HEAD
WELL, BLOW ME DOWN! 'AT'S RIGHT

MIXED PRICES PREDOMINATE IN MART LIST

Bank Clearings Take Labor Day Drop But Still Top Last Year's Mark.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Fractionally mixed price changes predominated in today's early stock market transactions.

On the upside at a moderately active opening were Radio Corp., Santa Fe, General Motors, Loew's and U. S. Steel. Declines were posted for Anaconda, Southern Pacific, North American, United Aircraft, Woolworth and Sears Roebuck.

Market analysts scanned the Dun & Bradstreet summary when disclosed that, while bank clearings in 23 cities dropped sharply during the week ended Wednesday in reflection of the Labor day holiday, they still topped the comparable period a year ago by 29.1 per cent.

3RD WAR BOND DRIVE BEGINS

Air Raid Sirens and Airplanes Mark Opening of Richland County Campaign.

L. J. Ott furthered plans for their part in the drive. The women will sponsor a fighting ship, one of the smaller navy craft which will bear a plaque "This fighting ship sponsored and made possible by war bond purchase of the people of Richland county, Ohio."

In the first war loan drive the women set as their goal sales sufficient to buy a bomber. They sold enough bonds to purchase the bomber and a pursuit ship also.

Townships leaders are organizing their workers with meetings in Jefferson, Monroe and Troy townships last night. Tonight's meetings include Sandusky township at the community house at 8:30 and Plymouth township at the trustees office at 8:45

Meanwhile today plans were going ahead on a nation-wide scale to back the door-to-door drive with one of the biggest advertising campaigns ever staged. A cavalcade of top screen star left Washington for Philadelphia last night to put on its first bond show after a tumultuous appearance in a parade through streets lined with an estimated 300,000 persons in the capital

Three great "armadas" of army and navy transport planes carrying veterans just back from the fighting fronts and more movie stars took off yesterday from Los Angeles, Dallas and New York to four adjacent areas of the country, while two more takeoffs were scheduled for today from Chicago and Atlanta.

get committee to consider their requests in the light of increases granted employes in business and industry.

The War Chest budget committee was scheduled to meet this afternoon to set up its 1944 budget which is expected to be approximately $100,000, several thousand dollars higher than the 1943 figure.

The Community Chest and War Fund drives will be conducted together in October, giving the city a goal of about $172,000 to raise to meet its welfare and service obligations for next year. C. A. Hines, president of Farm Tools, Inc., is chairman of the admission and distribution committee.

Largest increases granted Community Fund agencies for 1944 will go to the Friendly House, which receives $1,940 more; Salvation Army, due to get $1,500 more than it received this year, and the Y. M. C. A., boosted by $1,540.

The Visiting Nurses association was granted the same amount as in 1943 because of a balance of $940 from this year's allocation.

It was pointed out that the administration figure was dropped $580 for 1944 because last year's estimate was higher than was actually needed Administration costs in 1943 were 3.99 per cent of the amount raised in the fund drive as compared with a national average of eight per cent.

Here's how the 1944 Community Fund money will be used.

Boy Scouts, $6,900. Dental clinic, $1,330. Friendly House, $10,540. Girl Scouts, $3,990; Hospital bureau, $7,950; Milk Fund and Student Aid fund, $1,500; Salvation Army, $7,850; St. Vincent de Paul, $5,100. Visiting Nurses, $4,500; Y. M. C. A., $9,000; Y. W. C. A., $7,640 and administration costs, $6,000.

BRITISH TAKE 'FACTORIES TO THE WORKERS'

War Production Speeded Up By Enlistment of Women.

(By International News Service)

LONDON — The British ministries of war production and labor opened a comprehensive survey today to turn even the smallest villages and country hamlets into industrial centers and raise still higher the total war effort.

Plans were being drawn up to turn village halls, empty schoolhouses, disused mansions, big barns and empty gas-stations into auxiliary munition factories. The move was seen here as another preparation to ensure a steady supply of weapons in the coming great military struggles on the continent.

The preliminary survey also indicated a reversal of British production policy. Hitherto man - and - woman - power has been taken to the great industrial centers, Manchester, Birmingham, Coventry and London. The new plan aims to "take the factories to the workers" and is similar to the Lord Beaverbrook system of industrial dispersion which was instituted here after Dunkirk.

Great new pools of women war workers are expected to be made available by the move. Women, particularly farmers' wives, who had not been able to do factory work because of their home demands will now be able to contribute part time work to the national effort.

In each of the villages chosen by the government a small subfactory will be set up. Thousands of towns are to take part in the speed-up effort.

In one village, for example, women workers will assemble tank parts, in another gun elements. These parts will be sent by truck and train to the larger factories in nearby cities to be assembled into the whole weapon.

Thus, each munitions city in Britain will have its circle of satellite villages immediately around it.

But the government efforts to encourage village women to migrate to industrial cities has not ended. Scores of thousands are being combed out from small farms by the ministry of labor each month. These are housed in large barracks near their factories and work, usually for four week periods at a time.

The change-over has been necessary, explained a government spokesman, chiefly because of the shift in British war production. Weapons of defense are being cut down, weapons for offense are being increased.

"The change naturally means somewhat of a slow-down in some phases of production,' he explained. 'We aim to make this up by creating these satellite village-factories because, now more than ever, we must keep production at its highest pitch.'

Gargantua and His Gorilla Girl Are Among Top 'Stars' In Ringling Circus

Among the main features of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey circus coming to the fairgrounds on Sept. 18, are Mr. and Mrs. Gargantua.

Gargantua until lately thought he had married a demure sheltered gorilla girl when he took M'Toto of the Belgian Congo and Havana, Cuba, as a wife. M'Toto had been raised in aristocratic and dignified surroundings in the beautiful villa of Mrs. E. Kenneth Hoyt in the island capital.

But when the circus opened its season in New York, Gargantua found that she was a temperamental actress with plenty of exhibitionism. M'Toto has put on various acts with her keeper, Jose Thomas.

Mr. and Mrs. Gargantua are exhibited in a big air-conditioned cage at the circus.

A multitude of new acts and features, backed by internationally-renowned circus stars, are presented on the program.

Included in the program in the "big top" are a circus street parade of the nineties, aerial ballet, Count's trained wild animal act, and a pageant "Let Freedom Ring."

Performances will be given at 2:15 and 8:15 p. m. Doors open at 1 and 7 p. m.

MR. AND MRS. GARGANTUA

MARINE HERO GOT 10 JAPS

DAYTON — (INS) — Corp. Ivan Jack Ford, a member of the famed Marine Infantry scout troop, Carlson's Raiders, has returned to his Dayton home after a long stretch in the South Pacific.

Ford, who has been with the Marines for almost two years, has been wounded three times and recently recovered from an attack of tropical malaria, which temporarily made him unfit for service in the tropics.

Ford took part in nine major offensives at Guadalcanal, participated in the Coral Sea battle, and was at "Bloody Knoll" when the Japs tried to retake the airport.

According to Ford, all the Marines got their share of Japs. He himself is credited with sending ten to meet their ancestors.

In recognition of his brave and gallant action under fire, Ford has been awarded three distinguished service medals. Two of them were given to him by Australia and New Zealand. The last one was presented by Frank Knox, Secretary of the Navy, in the name of President Roosevelt while Corp. Ford was in a San Diego hospital.

FLOATING LIGHTS

NEW YORK — (INS) — Because water absorbs rather than reflects light, it cannot be floodlighted for airplane landings like a land runway. But floating rubber "doughnuts," carrying intense, battery-operated fluorescent lamps, now clearly define water runway areas, permitting safe landings even on the darkest night.

For these floating beacons, Westinghouse engineers developed a new hotcathode type of flourescent lamps which reduces the necessary electrical starting "pressure" to only 45 volts one sixtieth of that required for the special type of coldcathode fluorescent lamp formerly used.

I. W. CLARK NAMED MANAGER OF NEW WESTINGHOUSE DEPARTMENT

Irving W. Clark, associated since 1934 with the kitchen and housing activities at Westinghouse here, has been appointed manager of the newly created "Better Homes Department" of the Westinghouse company. B. W. Clark, vice president in charge of sales has announced.

Clark will have headquarters in Pittsburgh where he will be in charge of providing a centralized advisory and consultation service for architects, engineers, builders, prefabricators and home owners. This service is an extension of the home planning service inaugurated by Westinghouse nine years ago.

"The immediate function of the new department," Clark explained, "will be to coordinate the company activities in helping to house war workers though its ultimate objective is to develop post-war housing markets for the contributions which electricity is making toward better living."

The new department will serve as a clearing house and information center to report on housing equipment production and research carried on in several manufacturing divisions of the company, he said.

"It will coordinate the company's production with the housing industry's need for such things as home lighting, wiring layouts, room coolers, electrical controls, complete kitchen and laundry plans and the Precipitron or electrical air 'launderer'," Clark explained.

Since the war, Clark has been assisting the government in developing war housing programs. He has been identified with home planning and building for nearly 25 years, and has been manager of the home building department of the electric appliance division since 1936.

The son and grandson of a builder, he was born in 1895 at New Milford, Conn. In his youth he worked as a surveyor for the Connecticut state highway department, and also was a construction engineer and contractor.

IRVING W. CLARK

For the time being, Mr. and Mrs. Clark and their 16-year-old daughter, Beatrice, will continue to make their home on their farm in Weller township. The Clarks also have two sons, Lieut. Irving G. Clark of the U. S. Signal corps, now stationed at Camp Crowder, Mo., and Truman B. Clark, an engineer at the Bell Aircraft Bomber plant at Marietta, Ga.

Clark is a member of the Mansfield Chamber of Commerce and has been active on the chamber's war housing committee.

Herman Gifford gets the chance of a lifetime

(and passes it up)

FOR FIFTY YEARS Herman Gifford had been looking forward to this morning.

From now on he was going to spend his time fishing . . . and doing all the other things he'd always wanted to do.

For Herman Gifford had just completed half a century of work at Standard Oil of Ohio, and he was ready to live out his days on the company's comfortable retirement plan.

But somehow the Great Morning wasn't working out as planned. For one thing, Herman couldn't sleep. He was itching to get downstairs and read the war news.

For another, young Jack was away. And it didn't seem quite right to be living a life of ease while your only boy was in there flying with the Marine Air Corps.

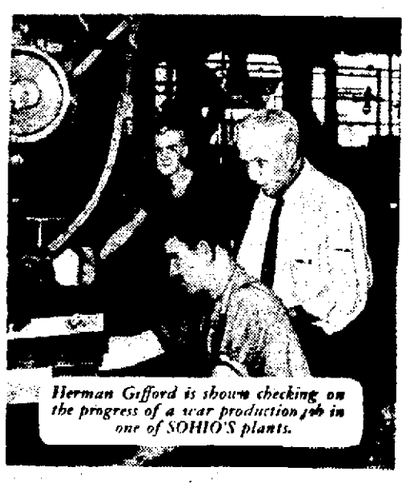
Well, that was August, 1942 . . .

Today, Herman Gifford is back in harness again, doing an important war job at SOHIO and giving it all he has.

Herman Gifford is typical of thousands of other men in America this year of 1943 . . . older men who've earned the right of peaceful pleasure and rest in their remaining years—but who, instead, are working in war industries and helping solve our manpower problem.

We're proud of him—and of them.



Herman Gifford is shown checking on the progress of a war production job in one of SOHIO'S plants.

[One of a series of SOHIO messages emphasizing the vital role of the Home Front in America's fight for freedom.]

Plans were being drawn up to turn village halls, empty schoolhouses, disused mansions, big barns and empty gas-stations into auxiliary munition factories. The move was seen here as another preparation to ensure a steady supply of weapons in the coming great military struggles on the continent.

The preliminary survey also indicated a reversal of British production policy. Hitherto man - and - woman - power has been taken to the great industrial centers, Manchester, Birmingham, Coventry and London. The new plan aims to "take the factories to the workers" and is similar to the Lord Beaverbrook system of industrial dispersion which was instituted here after Dunkirk.

Great new pools of women war workers are expected to be made available by the move. Women, particularly farmers' wives, who had not been able to do factory work because of their home demands will now be able to contribute part time work to the national effort.

In each of the villages chosen by the government a small subfactory will be set up. Thousands of towns are to take part in the speed-up effort.

In one village, for example, women workers will assemble tank parts; in another gun elements. These parts will be sent by truck and train to the larger factories in nearby cities to be assembled into the whole weapon.

Thus, each munitions city in Britain will have its circle of satellite villages immediately around it.

But the government efforts to encourage village women to migrate to industrial cities has not ended. Scores of thousands are being combed out from small farms by the ministry of labor each month. These are housed in large barracks near their factories and work, usually for four week periods at a time.

The change-over has been necessary, explained a government spokesman, chiefly because of the shift in British war production. Weapons of defense are being cut down, weapons for offense are being increased.

"The change naturally means somewhat of a slow-down in some phases of production," he explained. "We aim to make that up by creating these satellite village-factories because, now more than ever, we must keep production at its highest pitch."

Gargantua and His Gorilla Girl Are Among Top 'Stars' In Ringling Circus

Among the main features of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey circus coming to the fairgrounds on Sept 18 are Mr and Mrs Gargantua

Gargantua until lately thought he had married a demure sheltered gorilla girl when he took M'Toto of the Belgian Congo and Havana Cuba as a wife M'Toto had been raised in aristocratic and dignified surroundings in the beautiful villa of Mrs E Kenneth Hoyt in the island capital

But when the circus opened its season in New York, Gargantua found that she was a temperamental actress with plenty of exhibitionism M'Toto has put on various acts with her keeper Jose Thomas

Mr and Mrs Gargantua are exhibited in a big air-conditioned cage at the circus

A multitude of new acts and features backed by internationally-renowned circus stars, are presented on the program

Included in the program in the big top' are a circus street parade of the nineties aerial ballet Count's trained wild animal act and a pageant 'Let Freedom Ring

Performances will be given at 2 15 and 8 15 p m Doors open at 1 and 7 p m

MARINE HERO GOT 10 JAPS

DAYTON —(INS)— Corp Ivan Jack Ford a member of the famed Marine Infantry scout troop Carlson's Raiders has returned to his Dayton home after a long stretch in the South Pacific

Ford who has been with the Marines for almost two years has been wounded three times and recently recovered from an attack of tropical malaria which temporarily made him unfit for service in the tropics

Ford took part in nine major offensives at Guadalcanal participated in the Coral Sea battle and was at Bloody Knoll when the Japs tried to retake the airport

According to Ford all the Marines got their share of Japs He himself is credited with sending ten to meet their ancestors

In recognition of his brave and gallant action under fire Ford has been awarded three distinguished service medals Two of them were given to him in Australia and New Zealand The last one was presented by Frank Knox Secretary of the Navy in the name of President Roosevelt while Corp Ford was in a San Diego hospital

FLOATING LIGHTS

NEW YORK —(INS)— Because water absorbs rather than reflects light it cannot be floodlighted to airplane landings like a land runway But Houdry's rubber doughnuts carrying inlets battery operated fluorescent lamps now clearly define water runway areas permitting safe landings even on the darkest night

For these floating beacons Westinghouse engineers developed a new hot-cathode type of flourescent lamp which reduces the necessary electrical setting pressure to only 45 volts one sixth of that required for the special type of cold-cathode fluorescent lamp formerly used

I. W. CLARK NAMED MANAGER OF NEW WESTINGHOUSE DEPARTMENT

Irving W Clark associated since 1934 with the kitchen and housing activities at Westinghouse has been appointed manager of the newly created Better Homes Department of the Westinghouse company B W Clark vice president in charge of sales has announced

Clark will have headquarters in Pittsburgh where he will be in charge of providing a centralized advisory and consultation service for architects engineers builders prefabricators and home owners This service is an extension of the home planning service inaugurated by Westinghouse nine years ago

"The immediate function of the new department," Clark explained "will be to coordinate the company activities in helping to house war workers though its ultimate objective is to develop post-war housing markets for the contributions which electricity is making toward better living"

The new department will serve as a clearing house and information center to report on housing equipment production and research carried on in several manufacturing divisions of the company, he said

"It will coordinate the company's production with the housing industry's need for such things as home lighting wiring layouts room coolers electrical controls complete kitchen and laundry plans and the Precipitron or electrical air launderer " Clark explained

Since the war, Clark has been assisting the government in developing war housing programs He has been identified with home planning and building for nearly 25 years and has been manager of the home building department of the electric appliance division since 1936

The son and grandson of a builder he was born in 1895 at New Milford Conn In his youth he worked as a surveyor for the Connecticut state highway department, and also was a construction engineer and contractor

Herman Gifford gets the chance of a lifetime

(and passes it up)

FOR FIFTY YEARS Herman Gifford had been looking forward to this morning

From now on he was going to spend his time fishing .. and doing all the other things he'd always wanted to do.

For Herman Gifford had just completed half a century of work at Standard Oil of Ohio, and he was ready to live out his days on the company's comfortable retirement plan

But somehow the Great Morning wasn't working out as planned For one thing, Herman couldn't sleep He was itching to get downstairs and read the war news.

For another young Jack was away And it didn't seem quite right to be living a life of ease while your only boy was in there flying with the Marine Air Corps.

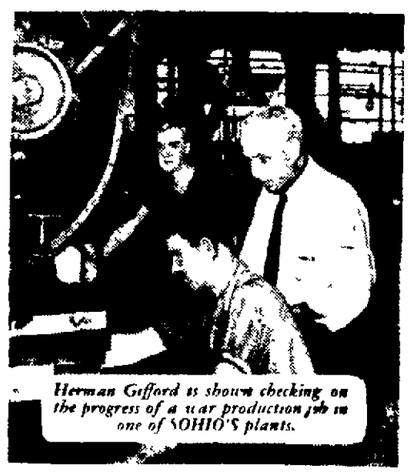
Well, that was August, 1942 . . .

Today, Herman Gifford is back in harness again, doing an important war job at SOHIO and giving it all he has

Herman Gifford is typical of thousands of other men in America this year of 1943 ..older men who've earned the right of peaceful pleasure and rest in their remaining years—but who, instead, are working in war industries and helping solve our manpower problem.

We're proud of him—and of them



Herman Gifford is shown checking on the progress of a war production job in one of SOHIO'S plants.

MANSFIELD, OHIO, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 9, 1943

Time to do your Christmas gift buying—for the boys in service in foreign countries.

An informational note is to the effect that it takes two hours for mass raiders of Berlin to pass a given point—after which the "given point" probably isn't there any more.

The OPA has warned eastern motorists against a "wild orgy" of driving—and, with a gallon and a half a week at their disposal, the "orgy" possibilities seem rather circumscribed.

Italy's Withdrawal From the War

SURRENDER by Italy had been so confidently anticipated, following the overthrow of Mussolini, that yesterday's announcement of capitulation lacked the element of surprise that would have ordinarily been attached to such a momentous happening.

Italy, insofar as a vast majority of its people were concerned, wanted none of the war into which their country was engulfed by Mussolini and his greedy fascist militarists. They despised their Nazi "comrades in arms" as much, possibly more, than the people of enemy nations, and in the final stages of lethargic resistance it was fear of the German army of occupation, rather than loyalty to the Hitler alliance, that delayed inevitable surrender.

Allied invasion of southern Italy served to climax the popular demand for quick surrender and also gave hope that United Nations strength would be sufficient to protect the Italian people, their institutions and their sacred places, from depredations by their Nazi "friends."

But it is the psychological, more than the military effect, that is being considered in connection with Italy's withdrawal as a minor Axis partner. It must now become apparent to all of the lesser Axis satellites that the fate of Hitlerism in Europe is sealed—that defeat is inescapable and that best procedure will be for each to follow Italy's course and get out of the war without greater losses than have thus far been sustained.

With Germany, of course, the problem is quite different, and as long as a madman is permitted to continue at the helm, there can be no safe prediction of probable action.

The course toward victory in Europe, however, is made more definite by Italy's action and it now becomes a matter of combining the strength of anti-Axis military force on east, west, north and south, until the hour comes for restoration of sanity in German leadership, acknowledgment of defeat and unconditional surrender.

Meanwhile Allied accomplishments to date, coupled with recognition of stupendous military requirements for the hard fighting that lies ahead, should serve to spur every American to greater efforts to speed the end—by increasing production of war materials, giving blood, foregoing luxuries, buying War Bonds, or doing whatever else is possible to hasten the day when nations can devote attention to problems of peace rather than those of war.

Taxation Should Be Equitable

THE ILLUSION that government is Santa Claus, if not already dispelled, soon will be. The president is asking for more billions in taxes, and Senator George, chairman of the senate finance committee, has bluntly warned that "any large increase must fall on the middle-income brackets and down to $2,500 and $3,000. The truth is that of our national income (now at 140 billions) some 91 billions goes to people in the lower brackets—people whose income is $3,000 or less."

Any public official who inspires belief that the rich can be made to pay for the war is doing a disservice to his country. This war must be paid for by the whole people.

If an attempt is made to grant tax favors to one group at the expense of another, the result can be none other than disastrous. The tax burden is growing so heavy that unless it is distributed equitably, individual opportunity and the incentive to produce will be destroyed.

If that happens, a farce will have been made of democratic government—a farce that will collapse under the weight of its own injustice, taking with it the liberties for which this war is being waged.

America's Reservoir of Brains

ONE SMALL ARMY of war workers, of whose existence few are more than vaguely aware, is the group of American scientists who have worked tirelessly to overcome shortages of critical and strategic materials.

So successfully have they executed their tasks that the War Production Board is able to announce that supplies of such materials had been increased to such an extent that no matter how long the war lasts, the United Nations generally would have enough to meet military needs.

Metallurgists and mineral experts are winning the Battle of Materials and proving that American technologists are more versatile and more comprehensive that German scientists. "These men of science," the WPB said in an announcement, "have broken such potential bottlenecks as the shortage of quartz crystals . . . they have stepped up aluminum production . . . they have made possible enormous quantities of magnesium. . . . Other similar and related activities have resulted in desperately needed increases in other critical materials and metals, including copper, chrome, manganese, and rubber."

Courageous Small Nations

WHEN the final appraisal of this world-wide struggle for freedom is rendered few records will be brighter than those of little Norway and Denmark.

It is not by size, but by steadfastness and valor in the face of overwhelming odds, that national glory is reckoned. Lately the Danes particularly have shown their ancient spirit. Against such ruthlessness and cruelty as have not been known in recent times, they fight for freedom and civilization. And they will win!

The little nations alone cannot turn back the tide of barbarism now rampant within Europe, but their spirit, rising to match the finest courage of human history, serves its purpose and calls forth invisible armies of defense.

One postwar planner confidently asserts that "human nature is changing"—and, for that matter, the Grand Canyon is steadily being cut deeper by the Colorado river . . . but such things take a long time.

An insurance company now produces statistics to show that married men live longer than single men—controverting an old idea that "it merely seems longer."

TO ADD NEW GLORY TO OLD GLORY!

Marshall's Report of Progress Contains Assurance of Victory

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

CHIEF OF STAFF GEORGE C. MARSHALL'S report on the progress of the war to Secretary Stimson is one of the finest military surveys produced since the world conflict started—a great accounting by a great soldier—and certainly falls within the class of "required reading" for every American.

The general gives a graphic summary of the war period between July 1, 1941, and June 30 of this year. It's shorn of unusual military terms and is wholly understandable to all. You'll find it divorced from propaganda—a straightforward statement over which you won't have to sweat in an effort to separate truth from half-truth or fiction.

The chief of staff's story is the record of American and Allied progress from the depths of peril to the present time of absolute assurance of victory. He doesn't attempt to predict when the war will be over, he doesn't say it will be short, and he doesn't say it will be long.

"The end is not yet clearly in sight, but victory is certain," he states with calm optimism.

That's encouraging enough for anybody. The thing a lot of folk will like about it is that the general doesn't deem it necessary to bludgeon the public by threatening that the war is going to last forever and a day. There are a lot of self-designed psychologists who think the only way to give the American people determination to carry on is to frighten them by predicting a long war.

This sort of thing strikes me as being just as objectionable as false optimism. Americans by and large are an understanding people, and thrive best on the straight truth. To tell them on general principle that the war is going to run on interminably, despite their efforts, not only isn't a safeguard against complacency but it causes deep discouragement.

WHILE we're on this subject, it's good to learn that the government is going to give the public "more realistic" news from the war fronts. That's something this column was begging for a year ago. We need it—and we can take it.

General Marshall doesn't specifically mention the "second front" which Moscow is demanding. He does say, however, that the Anglo-American aerial offensive against the European continent "gives promise of being a decisive factor in the ultimate destruction of the German citadel."

We know, of course, that an invasion of western Europe is projected by the Allies, and we also know that the way must be thoroughly prepared by bombardment from the air. It's logical to assume that the invasion will come when the bombing has sufficiently reduced German strength.

In this connection it's interesting to note that the Washington Star the first of this week disclosed on what it termed the highest authority that General Marshall will be commander in chief of any Allied invasion of the continent across the English channel.

That being so, plans apparently have progressed to a point where a commander can be chosen, though it doesn't necessarily mean invasion is imminent. General Marshall, by the way, is reputed to be one of the leading exponents of direct invasion from Britain.

One of the chief of staff's most interesting observations is in a footnote in which he states that the major miscalculation of the Japanese was their apparent expectation that the Russian army would collapse under the German grand assault on Moscow. I wish the general had developed that a bit.

Readers may recall that this column long ago suggested that one of the immediate causes of Japan's attack on the United States was the belief that Hitler was about to capture Moscow and knock Russia out.

The indications were that Hitler deliberately fooled the Nipponese into believing that the Soviet capital was about to capitulate and that therefore they were safe in making war against America and Britain.

The German assault on Moscow collapsed about the time of the attack on Pearl Harbor, and the fuehrer must have foreseen his failure when he was urging Tokyo to strike at Uncle Sam.

No Passports for Labor Leaders Who Wish to Journey to Russia

WASHINGTON—The state department's policy in not issuing passports to American labor leaders to visit Russia is significant. There has been a steady stream of American business and labor leaders to Great Britain, but for reasons best known to itself, the state department has frowned on similar visits to the Soviet Union.

As this is written, not one passport had been issued to American labor spokesmen to go to Moscow. As early as last January CIO's Secretary-Treasurer James B. Carey applied for a passport to Russia to confer with labor leaders on war production problems. After waiting months for the state department to move he gave up in disgust.

R. J. Thomas, president of the CIO United Auto Workers Union, was given the same brushoff when he applied for passage to Russia early this summer. After negotiating with state department officials for several weeks, Thomas realized he was wasting his time and remarked:

"I guess I'm too anti-Fascist for the state department."

Latest labor leader to run afoul of the department's policies is James Curran, raw-boned chief of the CIO National Maritime Union. After unsuccessful attempts to get a passport to look into the hospitalization and welfare of U. S. torpedoed seamen in Russia, Curran finally decided to paddle his own canoe. He shipped out as an able-bodied seaman from New York.

He will be the first American labor leader to set foot on Russian soil since the war began.

Mail for Soldiers.

JOHN STEINBECK to the contrary, the army is doing a great job in the delivery of mail. The "Of Mice and Men" author claims he saw bags of mail stacked up on the docks, but if so, it was merely for a day or two between ships.

Actually the army moves 20 million pieces of mail overseas per week. This is not domestic mail to army camps inside the U. S. A. —BUT OVERSEAS.

One thing you've got to remember in writing is that a six cent air mail stamp doesn't guarantee air mail delivery. The army has warned repeatedly that when military supplies are more urgent, air mail has to come second, may sometimes be sent by ship. Air postage doesn't guarantee air mail—unless you take advantage of V-mail.

V-mail always goes by air and costs only 3 cents.

But, however you send it, write. Capt. George Vournas, reporting recently to members of the White House staff, said:

"The specific gravity of mail for morale cannot be over-estimated. When walking through a barracks on inspection tours, or through messes or training centers, I could easily pick out the boys who had not heard from home. They were the dejected and dispirited ones."

So write.

Alaska Delays.

CERTAIN letters, which the censor has opened and read regarding Aleutian Alaskan bases, may be probed by the Truman committee on its current jaunt to the Arctic areas.

The letters told of delays and time-wasting by a construction company; and although the letters were scrutinized by the censor presumably for the purpose of rectifying government mistakes, it took a long time to do anything about it.

For instance, one worker, helping to build a base in Alaska, wrote to his wife in Los Angeles:

"The job seems allright, tho they do NOT want workers—only time wasters. I thot I had seen a lot of waste, but nothing compared with this. Seems like many men come and go. I worked 6 hrs today but never had my hands on a tool."

A copy of this letter was circulated to interested government departments but apparently it had no effect upon improving the efficiency of this defense project in Alaska. For one month later, another worker wrote to friends of his in Shelton, Wash.:

"All we do is sleep, work and and eat—as for work we do very little of that. Over fifty per cent of the people wish to go out, the company refuses to release them. Consequently they figure, if they don't produce anything on the job, the government will get disgusted and cancel their contract. It's a terrible situation as far as I can see. The company can blame no one but themselves. . . . Before you will change the morale of the workers here, you will have to change the management."

Manager Complains.

IT WOULD be expected, that if any value was to be derived from opening private mail and circulating these letters to government agencies, the inefficiency would be rectified immediately. However, one month after the second letter (many other similar letters had been viewed by the censor meanwhile), the Alaska manager wrote to the executive manager of the company, as follows:

"It actually seems to me that the company is sacrificing the good of the war effort in Alaska for their personal friendship of the men I have spoken to you of.

"Frankly, from the outsider's point of view, this job up to the present time has not been very savory, and while I am sure that most of the conditions have arisen through misunderstanding and personalities, yet there have been conditions existent on this job that would not bear the light of investigation. The waste of man hours and material is appalling. I believe it can be largely overcome by new blood and proper organization."

This was when the Japs were still in the outer fringes of the Aleutian islands and when bases were vitally needed in Alaska.

The situation finally has been rectified, but it took a long time. Working conditions were such as could be noted by any half bright army or navy inspector without opening private letters.

Note: The censor noted at the bottom of letters, "Punctuation and grammar as in original."

How Bridges Help Win the War— And How They Are Built In a Hurry.

SOMEWHERE IN SICILY—(By Wireless)—It was an hour after daylight when I returned to the German-blown highway crater which our Third Division engineers had been working on all night.

It really didn't look as though they'd accomplished much, but an engineer's eye would have seen that the groundwork was all laid. They had drilled and blasted two holes far down the jagged slope. These were to set upright timbers into so they wouldn't slide downhill when weight was applied.

The far side of the crater had been blasted out and leveled off so it formed a road across about one-third of the hole. Small ledges had been jack-hammered at each end of the crater and timbers bolted into them forming abutments of the bridge that was to come.

Steel hooks had been imbedded deep into the rock to hold wire cables. At the tunnel mouth lay great timbers, two feet square, and other long pieces of timber bolted together in the middle to make them long enough to span the hole.

AT ABOUT 10 a. m., the huge uprights were slid down the bank, caught by a group of men clinging to the steep slope below, and their ends worked into the blasted holes. Then they were brought upright by men on the banks, pulling on ropes tied to them. Similar heavy timbers were slowly and cautiously worked out from the bank until their tops rested on the uprights.

A half-naked soldier doing practically a wire-walking act, edged out over the timber and bored a long hole down through two timbers with an air-driven bit. Then he hammered a steel rod into it, tying them together.

Others added more bracing, nailing them together with huge spikes driven in by sledge hammers. Then they slung steel cable from one end of the crater to the other, wrapped it around the upright stanchions and drew it tight with a winch mounted on a truck.

NOW came the coolie scene as 20 shirtless, sweating soldiers to each of the long-spliced timbers carried and slid them out across the chasm, resting them on the two wooden spans just erected. They sagged in the middle, but still the cable beneath took most of the strain. They laid 10 of them across and the bridge began to take shape. Big stringers were bolted down, heavy flooring was carried on and nailed to the stringers. Ben built up the approaches with stones. The bridge was almost ready.

Around 11 a. m., jeeps had begun to line up at the far end of the tunnel. They carried reconnaissance platoons, machine gunners and boxes of ammunition. They'd been given No. 1 priority to cross the bridge.

First, Maj. Gen. Truscott arrived again and sat on a log talking with the engineering officers, waiting patiently. Around dusk of the day before, the engineers had told me they'd have jeeps across the crater by noon of the next day. It didn't seem possible at the time, but they knew whereof they spoke.

But even they will have to admit it was pure coincidence that the first jeep rolled cautiously across the miracle bridge at high noon, to the very second.

In that first jeep was Gen. Truscott and his driver, facing a 200-foot tumble into the sea if the bridge gave way. The engineers had insisted they send a test jeep across first. But when he saw it was ready, the general just got in and went.

It wasn't done dramatically but it was a sort of dramatic thing. It showed that the "Old Man" had complete faith in his engineers. I heard soldiers speak of it appreciatively for an hour.

JEEPS snaked across the rickety bridge, behind the general while the engineers kept stations beneath the bridge to watch and measure the sag under each load. The bridge squeaked and bent as the jeeps crept over. But it held, and nothing else mattered. When the vital spearhead of the division got across, traffic was halted again and the engineers were given three hours to strengthen the bridge for heavier traffic by inserting a third heavy upright in the middle.

That, too, was a terrific job but at exactly 4 p. m. the first ¾-ton truck rolled across, and they kept putting over heavier and heavier loads until before dark a giant bulldozer was sent across, and after that, everything could follow.

The tired men began to pack their tools into trucks. Engineer officers who hadn't been to sleep in 36 hours went back to their olive orchard to clean up. They had built a jerry bridge, a comical bridge, a proud bridge, but above all the kind of bridge that wins wars. And they had built it in one night and half a day. The general was mighty pleased.

HELP WANTED

(Editor's Note: The Army Corps of Engineers has asked The News-Journal to publish the following request with Ernie Pyle's column).

One hundred thousand men with construction skills are needed urgently for overseas service with the Corps of Engineers, U. S. army, to do the kind of work being described by Ernie Pyle in his current series on the work of the engineers.

Construction men who want to build and fight with the Army Engineers should go to any Army Recruiting station or to any office of the Corps of Engineers.

A Farmer's Diary — By CALVIN A. BYERS

Not So Unpatriotic

"MY SISTERS and sisters-in-law are earning money at defense jobs now," proffered the farmer's wife, reaching for a clothespin to hang a clean shirt on the line. "They say to me that I'd ought to be more patriotic and get into something that'd help win the war. They say I don't act like I know there's a war going on."

"I suppose your sisters and sisters-in-law all wear uniforms?" I suggested.

"That's right. Even the one who is a garage mechanic has a nifty suit with a badge on the sleeve. They get their pay check every week and buy bonds and pretty clothes and nice furniture. They spend a lot at beauty parlors, too. I guess they look on me as an awful frump."

(She was not a frump. She was neat and trim, with graying hair that stuck out from beneath a figured cap.)

"Let's see—just what do you do all day long?" I asked.

"Just chores and the housework—and of course the washing and ironing and cooking. My husband's away a lot with his machinery. There'll be three lunches to pack, now that school is starting and of course I help with the children's home work and see that they do their music."

"Who drives the milk in to the creamery every morning?"

"Oh, I do that, too. I like to. It gets me away for a little and I can get the groceries on the same trip. One of the boys was sick last week. We didn't call a doctor, although he had a high temperature half the night. I just gave him tepid baths and a good physic and stayed right there until he began to sweat and went to sleep. Doctors are so busy, and I've done right smart home nursing."

"Let's see, you have four children, haven't you?"

"That's right. The oldest girl's just thirteen and of all things, got a beau a'ready! That redhead, freckled boy on the next farm. They walk home from school together . . ."

"How old are the others?"

"Our big boy's fifteen and his brother is eight. The littlest girl is six and starts to school now. That's why they think I ought to do war work. They say with the children away all day I could easily manage, and look at the money I'd make and the new interests I'd have. Of course, my children are good, and quite capable . . . but . . ."

"What kind of work would you go into?"

"I haven't decided yet. I taught country school, years ago. But I've been keeping house and caring for babies so long that I'm rusty on everything else. Besides"—here she hesitated a little—"I can't make up my mind that my duty is not right here. Seems to me a family like Jim's and mine can't be well started and then turned over to somebody else, or neglected because of a defense job for the duration. I'd be away when the children got home from school. It'd mean more money, but Jim doesn't want me to do it. I tell him he's just selfish and that we'd be ahead—but I can't make up my mind, just yet."

(What do readers of this column think? How should she solve this problem? Address your suggestions to Calvin A. Byers, A Farmer's Diary, care Mansfield News-Journal.)

HAILS VICTORY

Hoover Says Statesmanship Will Speed Other Gains.

NEW YORK — (INS) — Former President Herbert Hoover hailed the victory in Italy and declared that "great statesmanship now will hasten the surrender of others."

The former president's statement said:

"The Italian victory is a glorious turning point in the war. We can take great pride in the share our splendid forces, with the British, had in bringing it about.

"We have now quickly to show the Italian people that this is their redemption from oppression; that it is the resurrection, not the destruction, of their national life.

"Great statesmanship now will hasten the surrender of others."

Red Cross Plans Opening of New Motor Corps Class

Plans have been completed by the Red Cross Motor Corps to open a new class for women interested in joining the motor corps, Miss Miriam Hooper, Red Cross executive secretary, announced today following a meeting of corps members.

Mrs. F. David Boals, recently appointed chairman of the motor corps following the resignation of Mrs. O. D. Fair, conducted the meeting.

The new class is being started due to the increase in the work of the motor corps.

Training for the corps includes standard and advanced first aid, and motor mechanics. Workers furnish their own cars.

The class will start early in October if enough women sign up, Miss Hooper said. Registrations will be taken at the Red Cross office.

Wastage in the home is estimated to cause a loss of 5 per cent of the protein, 24 per cent of the fat, and 20 per cent of the carbohydrates of all foods provided.

Recreation For War Workers Aid To Production

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — Some war workers prefer their recreation in turkish baths, others in roller skating and cooking.

Their tastes are about as varied as their jobs but they all have but one thing in common. All want to have some fun in their leisure time.

Lack of recreation for war workers is a threat to production, according to the recreation division of the Federal Security agency, which has compiled a report of actual experiences of communities in providing recreation for men and women of assembly lines.

To solve the problem of keeping war workers happy on the job, one Midwestern community established a "down patrol" recreation center for workers coming off at midnight. Until 8 a. m., the 400 workers play tennis, darts, dance, read, visit, take showers, eat doughnuts and drink coffee.

It keeps them happy and cuts down on accidents, which, the FSA asserts, are caused by fatigue and tenseness.

Expect Allies to Get 200 Ships by Italy's Surrender

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The surrender of Italy may ultimately bring 200 warships into the Allied fleet, according to the best information in naval circles in Washington today.

Although terms of the surrender were not fully known, it was believed in Washington that the vessels in the Italian fleet would be commandeered for use by the Allies, either with or without their Italian crews.

The greatest part of the Italian navy actually used against the Allies was its fleet of 70 submarines.

At latest reports, the Italians had two new 35,000-ton battleships, one unfinished 35,000-ton dreadnaught, four old battleships, three heavy cruisers, all of which are damaged, 12 light cruisers, 50 destroyers, and about 50 corvettes besides the 70 submarines.

NOBLE FAMILIES

STOCKHOLM — (INS) — Sweden today has 666 noble families introduced at the House of Nobles in Stockholm. In ancient times the number was as high as 3,000. Unlike England, Sweden does not increase the number of noble families by creating new counts or barons.

The total number of nobles in Sweden today is about 15,000, of whom, however, some 1,600 live abroad.

AID ARMY

CHICAGO — (INS) — A "War Technologists' Corps," composed of Illinois Institute of Technology alumni with specialized scientific skills, has been assigned 20 technical research problems by the army, it was revealed today. Nazis Battle Allies Landing At Naples

German Headquarters In Italy Wiped Out by Smashing Assault of U. S. Flying Fortresses.

In that area, too, the Allied forces had made first contact with German forces after the greater part of a week of virtually no opposition. The communique said "German prisoners have been taken."

"Heavy bombers of the northwest African air forces made a concentrated attack on the German headquarters at Frascati," an air communique said.

Frascati is located a dozen miles southeast of Rome. The entire town, taken over by the Germans some time ago, was reported levelled by Flying Fortresses.

In this attack, the communique said there was strong opposition by enemy fighters and 28 were destroyed.

Night bombers continued their attacks on German communications on the mainland, hitting Benevento, Metaponto, Potenza, Battipaglia, Eboli and Foria.

In the day and night air operations, 33 enemy aircraft were reported destroyed against an Allied loss of six.

(Swiss radio reports said Allied planes in hundreds were descending on newly obtained Italian airfields.

(Aside from the landings in the Naples area, rumors flew of Allied landings all along the western coast of the Italian peninsula.

(Reports reaching Madrid said United Nations troops were at Ostia, port of Rome, and also at Leghorn, important port and naval base, 160 miles north of Rome.

(Stockholm newspapers said the Allies were attacking from bridgeheads at two other places on both sides of Rome, at Civitavecchia, 40 miles north of the capital, and at Gaeta, 75 miles to the south of the capital. These reports said landing attempts also were under way at Genoa.

(Illustrating the apparent confusion inside Italy, Madrid reports said battles had taken place between Germans and Italians throughout the Po region, and that Italian army leaders had rushed troops to leading airports in the Milan region to hold the bases against German seizure.

(The Germans claimed that Italian troops in Greece had been ordered to surrender their arms and go to the coast to await further German orders.)

Events in Italy were moving at a dizzy speed since the kingdom's capitulation was announced yesterday, as the Allies rushed men and guns to the peninsula in a race against German forces.

Hitler apparently had reached a decision, as announced by the Berlin radio, to throw the German army into a full-scale defense of Italy. Thousands of German troops, including some of the best, had been pouring into Italy in recent weeks in anticipation of an Italian surrender.

As a consequence the Allied forces in the Mediterranean under Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower were presented with a gargantuan task that may speed up a decision of the whole European war.

Announcement of the new landing only 135 miles short of Rome came just 12 hours after news of the armistice which took Italy out of the Axis partnership and left Germany and Japan as the two major enemies of the United Nations.

"Further operations have started on the Italian mainland in the vicinity of Naples."

Thus was told in official language the start of a momentous sequel to yesterday's dramatic surrender, the series of Allied Mediterranean victories—Tunisia, Pantelleria, Sicily—and the first mainland landings last Friday by the British Eighth army.

Some 200 miles separate the new zone of operations from the Calabrian coast where the British and Canadians have pushed steadily ahead in a "walkover" occupation of the Italian toe.

Naples, in peacetime a city of almost 1,000,000 population, has been battered often and hard by the Allied air arm, and warships stole in some weeks ago to bombard enemy shipping and military installations in the harbor.

It is a vital link in Italy's north-south railway communications and one of that country's major ports.

A broadcast, believed to come from Vienna, called Marshal Pietro Badoglio a "traitor," said "a pure and strong Italy, a Fascist Italy, will arise," and added that "a Fascist government acting in the name of Mussolini has been formed."

The broadcast called on Italian soldiers either to join the Germans and continue to resist or go home and await orders.

There is no exact information on the strength of the German forces in Italy, but it is believed to be far more powerful than any the Allied armies yet have engaged on the southern front and that it is many times the sizes of what the Germans had in Africa and Sicily.

Some of Hitler's toughest divisions were reported moved into North Italy. Italy apparently is to become the scene of a titanic struggle.

Italians Put Under Arrest In Berlin

LONDON —(U.P.)— All leading Italian personalities in Berlin have been taken to police headquarters and police have cordoned the Italian embassy, radio Berlin reported in a broadcast heard by the Exchange Telegraph agency today.

Swiss Rush Troops to Guard Frontiers

BERN—(AP)—Little Switzerland in the heart of German-held Europe rushed troop reinforcements to her frontiers today to await any eventuality as published press reports here said tension between Germany and Italy was fast approaching a climax.

All Swiss newspapers published a federal council order reinforcing frontier units.

(The Berlin radio in a Bern dispatch recorded by the Associated Press said the federal council had mobilized the special frontier troops and they were moving into positions on the Swiss border.)

A German frontier report to the Gazette of Lausanne, meanwhile, said Nazi police were refusing exit visas since last Tuesday to Italian workers in Germany who were besieging the police bureaus in great numbers.

FDR, Pope Iron Out Discord By Telephone

LONDON —(INS)— President Roosevelt and Pope Pius XII held a 50-minute telephone conversation on Saturday, according to the newspaper Popolo Di Roma, the Italian news agency Stefani said today.

The Stefani report, recorded by Reuter's, said the talk was believed to have dealt with misunderstandings arising between the pope and the Anglo-Saxon powers since the pontiff's latest peace message.

"The conversation resulted favorably for the great Catholic masses in the United States," it was said.

Enrico Galeazzi, governor of Vatican City, was said to be carrying a personal message from the pope to President Roosevelt.

Nazis Claim They Occupy North and Central Italy

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—A German military spokesman announced today that "north and central Italy have been occupied by German troops," a Berlin broadcast said today.

"Insofar as the occupation had not been carried out already it has now been done. In most towns of Italy the armed forces allowed those forces to be disarmed (by Germans) without offering resistance," declared the broadcast, still quoting the Nazi military spokesman.

At the same time the spokesman declared Allied troops which landed Tuesday on the Gulf of Eufemia, north of Palmi, had been enveloped by German troops and "their annihilation was imminent Wednesday evening."

Reuters reported from Stockholm that Adolf Hitler held a war council today at which it was decided to reinforce the German Po line in northern Italy and fight to the last man.

At the same time the German radio began issuing a stream of orders, apparently for the purpose of confusing the Italians and contradicting earlier steps taken by the surrendering Badoglio regime in Italy.

One Berlin broadcast said a new "Italian Fascist government" set up by the Germans in Germany had issued orders to Italian ships to remain in continental ports and that the "air force would bomb ships which sail for North Africa," as was ordered by Marshal Badoglio yesterday.

A second announcement from the Berlin radio said a military spokesman declared that "conformably with an agreement with the Italian army in Greece, Italian troops after surrendering heavy material, will withdraw to the coast and there await further instructions from the German high command."

In his broadcast to the Italian people announcing creation of the new "government which stands and acts in Mussolini's name," the Berlin commentator cried:

"Soldiers! Do not obey the false orders of treason. Refuse to surrender to the enemy. Refuse to fight against your German comrades in arms."

The surrender of Italy threw into confusion the entire German position in the Balkans, and Adolf Hitler's whole political structure in southern and southeastern Europe seemed today to be in danger of falling to pieces even before the Germans are driven from Italy.

Dispatches to London newspapers told of Admiral Nicholas Horthy, regent of Hungary, anxiously summoning his chiefs of staff and promising a "most important declaration" later today; of heightened fears and restiveness in already fearful Rumania and the shakiness of Bulgaria, now minus her pro-Axis King Boris.

Italians In Balkans Told To Cease Hostile Acts

(By Associated Press)

CAIRO—Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, Allied commander-in-chief in the Middle East, called upon Italian garrisons in the Balkans last night to "cease all hostile acts" and surrender their equipment to the Allies but warned Greek and Yugoslav patriots against a premature uprising against German occupation forces.

In a special broadcast Wilson said that Italian troops in the Balkans are "now obeying my, not German orders."

"Their ships must be handed over to the United Nations, their aircraft must be flown to Allied airfields. They must not hand over their arms or equipment or defended points to the Germans," Wilson warned.

He directed units of the Italian navy and merchant fleets in the eastern Mediterranean to proceed to Cairo and Haifa in Palestine. Italian aircraft were to be received at Allied fields at various points along the Mediterranean.

Wilson warned the guerrilla bands which have been hammering relentlessly at Axis forces in Greece and Yugoslavia that "the day of liberation is not yet at hand "and that they should "await our signal for a general uprising.

Tokyo Howls Italy Has Betrayed Tri-Partite Pact

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—"A regrettable act of betrayal of the Japanese-German-Italian tripartite pact" was charged against Italy today by the Japanese government in a special statement released by the Japanese board of information and transmitted to the United States by the Japanese agency, Domei.

The statement echoed earlier German reaction that Japan had "anticipated such a statement," however, and had taken "all necessary measures." It would have "no effect," said the statement, "on the general war situation."

The text of the announcement, as recorded by government monitors follows:

"The Badoglio government in Italy has surrendered unconditionally to the United States and Britain. By this move the Badoglio government has committed a regrettable act of betrayal of the Japanese-German-Italian tripartite pact and of the solemn agreement not to conclude a separate peace.

"However, as the Japanese government had anticipated such a situation and accordingly have taken all necessary measures, this development will have no effect on the general war situation.

"Japan further strengthens her firm confidence in sure victory. By rendering still closer ties of cooperation between Germany and the other European allies and the countries and peoples of greater East Asia, Japan is determined to crush her long standing enemies, the United States and Britain."

The Tokyo radio broadcast an earlier announcement of the Italian surrender, beamed to the home front, and also asserting the development would not effect the course of the war.

The first recorded Japanese mention of Italy's capitulation came 14 hours after the Allied announcement.

In a Tokyo domestic radio broadcast reported by U. S. government monitors, the announcer told the Japanese people Japan "resolves to crush America and Britain to the very end" and will carry on the war, and thus put Emperor Hirohito "at ease."

London Doubts Nazis Can Resist Long In Italy

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Bottled in northern Italy and harassed by a vengeful population the German army's 300,000 occupation troops in Italy stand little chance of successfully resisting Allied forces which were reported from neutral quarters to be landing today all along the shin of the Italian boot.

That is the prevailing military opinion in London where it was almost unanimously forecast that the Allied Mediterranean forces will roll back the Germans to the very gates of the fatherland and proceed to the reduction of the southeastern outer bastion of the European fortress in the Balkans.

Amid jubilation over the greatest of Anglo-American military victories there can be no doubt, however, that the Germans, with whom Allied forces have already made contact in the Naples area, would exert desperate and bloody effort to stall off inevitable defeat.

"This last phase of the Italian war may provide one of the most difficult tasks which the Allied troops have yet had to face," said the London Evening Standard.

There was serious doubt expressed in London, however, that with German shortages of troops, supplies and transport that the German army would be able to undertake any more than a delaying action on the Po river line which is the strongest natural defense barrier across northern Italy where the main Nazi forces are concentrated.

Surrounded by a hostile population and dependent on the narrow Alpine passes for all supplies and reinforcements, the Germans sooner or later will "have to rest content with guarding the passes and little more," Lt. Gen. H. G. Martin, military correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, predicted.

Brigadier E. C. Anstey, military correspondent for the Daily Sketch, said that "Germans now south of the Po should have no reasonable chance of escape at all."

German forces concentrated north of the Po are estimated in London to include roughly half of the 18 German divisions in Italy. The remaining forces are scattered down the length of Italy to the toe, where some are engaged in fighting the British Eighth army north of Palmi.

Gen. Martin suggested that as soon as the heel of Italy has been cleared, "an invasion of Albania or indeed the whole coast of Yugoslavia becomes a feasible proposition . . . the Balkans are ripe for invasion."

He forecast the Germans would withdraw to a line running along the northern border of Italy across the Gulf of Venice and along the Sava river to the Danube and on to the Black sea—a line guarding the European crossroads of Vienna and Budapest.

MAP NEW DRIVE FOR SALVAGE

Civilian Defense Leaders Announce New Campaign To Start Sept. 20.

Mansfield and Madison township will be asked again this fall to search their attics, basements and kitchens for waste materials that will help to end the war sooner.

Under the direction of the civilian defense organization and with the help of the Boy and Girl Scouts, Salvation Army and Volunteers of America, a salvage drive will get under way Sept. 20 to continue through Oct. 20. Mrs. Gayle Owings, who headed the waste fats campaign last spring, will be chairman of the salvage committee.

Emphasis will be placed on the collection of tin, brown and corrugated paper, fats, old silk and nylon hosiery, and radios that won't work any more. The radios will be taken apart and the metal parts added to the salvage heap.

There will be no house-to-house campaign, but the business district will be canvassed for "treasures" of wrapping paper, old hosiery and other materials that have an important place in the manufacture of war essentials.

For the convenience of Madison township residents, stations will be set up for the collection of salvage articles. Truckers will visit the collection posts to pick up the waste materials.

Ammunition for Energy!

I.V.C VITAMINS

SCIENCE and the medical profession have learned the importance of Vitamins in the daily diet. It is so important, that our government has made Vitamins an important factor in the supplementary diet of our men and women in the service.

In these days of top production—longer hours—intensive work—changing diets, and scarcity of protective foods, Vitamins are important. Don't let vitamin deficiency rob your system of needed energy and resistance—play safe by supplementing your daily diet with Vitamins!

And, in taking any vitamin preparation, remember this: No one vitamin can do the work of another! Each must be present in adequate amounts! If your body is starving for vitamins, it is likely that you are deficient in not one, but several of these important elements. And the proper way to make up for the deficiency is to supply needed amounts of all the recognized vitamins.

Now—more than ever before—you owe it to yourself and your country to maintain your physical fitness and mental alertness! Get your Vitamins today—they'll help give you that extra "drive" you need to do your best!

VITAMIN A

. . . essential for growth

Children need it to grow. You need it to fight off colds and infections, and for good eyesight. Vitamin A is often called "the body's first line of defense."

VITAMIN B

. . . for energy and appetite

The Vitamin B Complex contains elements essential to proper nerve function and important in promoting appetite. Shortages may impair health or cause bad skin conditions.

VITAMIN C

Vitamin C is essential to normal development of bones, teeth and gums. It protects you from scurvy, and maintains your resistance against other infections.

VITAMIN D

. . . the sunshine vitamin

Vitamin D is necessary for control of the bone-forming elements—calcium and phosphorus. It aids in preventing rickets. Sufficient quantity of D is rarely found in normal diet.

ENERGY FOR HEALTH FOR VICTORY

Thiamin Chloride Tablets

Each tablet supplies 5 times the adult minimum daily requirements for Vitamin B1. Promotes proper nerve function, increases appetite.

Beauty Case Should Have Sun Glasses

By MME. QUI VIVE

If your beauty equipment does not include a pair of sun glasses, it is not complete. When old Sol throws his bright light upon you, your eyelids will contract; it is their business to protect your eyes. Looking through half closed lids means that you are squinting, and squinting makes turkey tracks.

Not only that, litttle one. Glaring sunlight causes headaches, because of its effect upon the delicate optic mechanism. It is bad enough when it leatherizes the sacred complexion, but its injury to vision is worse.

When buying sun glasses, seek an optometrist who is qualified to give you sound, professional advice. Ordinary colored glasses sometimes have wavy imperfections that do damage to eyesight. Good ones are carefully ground. They come in various tones and permit one to see clearly despite their darkness. There's no reason in the world why you should go fumbling around as if you were half blind, when you can get good lenses that give the effect of diffused sunlight.

If you wear corrective glasses all the time, it is particularly necessary that your goggles be the kind that conforms to your needs.

If you have been subjected to strong sunlight, and the lids of your eyes are red, and the eyes themselves smarting, put in a few drops of boric acid eye-lotion—your druggist will prepare it for you—and then bathe the lids with fairly hot water. Follow with ice cold moist compresses repeating until you have a feeling of comfort and refreshment.

This is a good time for a five-minute eyecial. It will keep the surrounding tissues smooth and firm.

Use a heavy emollient that keeps the fingers from slipping. Sweep outward over the upper lid. Continue to the temple, and there massage with a couple of circular motions. Come back under the eye to starting point. This movement sweeps crosswise of the crinkles, and gives them an ironing.

Though midsummer is with us, it is just as well to be faithful to your sun-tanning creams and lotions. Protection is the first rule in retaining a fine, delicate complexion. You may have a nice, beige tan that you think is becoming — and maybe it is — but there is still time for you to get toasted, if not bronzed, and just what is the sense in that?

Take all the fun that the silly season offers. Be an outdoor girl. Breathe deeply and make your lungs laugh; but do take care of your precious hide. Mid-August means that autumn is not far away. Then what?

Mix corn flakes, egg, sugar and cloves together; add milk and ground meat and work well together. Pack in 2-pound loaf pan and bake at 300 degrees F, for 1½ hours. Serve hot or cold. This recipe will make sufficient loaf for 6 to 8 servings.

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, September 10.

According to the lunar transits, this day may have many trivial or petty difficulties or perplexities, which may bring discord into the orderly turn of events, in both business and purely personal relations. However, the powers of diplomacy, tact and compromise are strongly accented. Large affairs as well as minor anxieties may be satisfactorily composed by use of these inner promptings.

Those whose birthday it is are likely to find themselves beset by a series of trifling, perplexing or aggravating circumstances, affecting their business as well as private life.

A child born on this day will be blessed with a higher order of creative talents and traits of character, enabling it to enjoy a pleasant and profitable career, perhaps in some novel or unusual channel Secret undercurrents rule its life.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

I frowned involuntarily as I put up the receiver, and my father spoke quickly.

"What went wrong?" he asked.

"It was really nothing, I suppose," I said, "but I wish Mary had not been quite so effusive, with possible listeners on the line."

"What did she say?" he queried.

I repeated Mary's words, and his own brows drew together, then relaxed.

"Luckily, everybody who has any acquaintance with Mary is used to her extravagant speech," he said, and my own qualms fled, as I rose from my chair in obedience to my father's evident impatience.

Arrive at Apartment.

It was less than the five minutes I had mentioned, when we came to the door of the Noel Veritzen apartment. Noel opened the door, and when we had entered, and he had closed the door after us, Mary sprang up from the couch where she had been reclining with an afghan drawn over her in her clever but tedious faking of a badly sprained ankle

"Is the night latch on, Noel?" she asked, even before she had greeted us. "I want to have time to get myself artistically invalided if anybody else comes"

"Very much on," her husband told her, and then she came forward to us with outstretched hands.

"Welcome to the old home town!" she said. "But before you tell me the reason for your visit, how about a spot of luncheon for all of us? I'm nearly starved."

I looked at my father and he spoke quickly.

"Yes, that will be all right, for you and Mary can go into the bedroom to discuss the real issue at hand, and we can bring them up to date on what has happened while the order is being filled."

"Here's a luncheon menu," Mary said, picking it up from the table and handing it to me, while she poised a pencil over a piece of paper. "Just give me your orders. I'll write them down and then Noel can telephone them, if Aunt Madge needs me."

We made short work of the order, naming our preference quickly. Only Ronald said, "I don't want any luncheon," but my father settled that by saying firmly, "Order some orange juice, scrambled eggs, toast and coffee for him," and then said sternly to the boy, "the first essential in this search for Marion is to keep up your strength. Do not forget that again."

"All right, sir, I won't," Ronald answered faintly, and my father nodded. Thn, as Noel took the memorandum from Mary's hand and started for the telephone, my father looked at Mary and me.

"It isn't necessary for the rest of us to see that paper until afterward," he said. "Better get on with it."

I followed Mary forthwith into the bedroom, and put a query as soon as the door was closed.

"Is that code book you and Marion used where you can get it quickly?"

"It's in a locked strong box in my bureau drawer under my lingerie," she said, "and nobody ever touched that drawer but me. I'll get it right away. But tell me quickly, you've heard from Marion?"

"Yes—and no," I replied. "Get the book, and then I'll tell you what has happened."

She brought the familiar little black book from her bureau drawer, and then, as quickly as I could, I told her of Ronald's glimpse of Marion, and of the queer story of the waiter, Crump, who had picked up the note the obviously disguised girl at the restaurant had dropped for him.

"What a resourceful darling she is!" Mary exclaimed, and then I held out the note Marion had put inside the one she had written for the waiter's perusal.

"If you can't make sense of this, nobody can," I said.

Reads the Note.

She took up the note and read it attentively, while wth my carefully trained memory I went over the words with her, visualizing them as if I were looking over her shoulder.

"Deer Auntie Madge," the note began.

"I'm writing this so you can tell my mother that she don't need to worry over me. Where I am, the people are verry nice and kind to me. I feel so safe I know you are thinking of me as I am thinking of you, and I'll come to see you just as soon as I can. Tell Mary to take care of my silver cross and wear it for me. Also, my gold bracelet, and my opal ring and the amber necklace my grandmother gave me. Always your, Marion."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

DON'T BE A PESSIMIST

SO LONG as there is a chance, though very remote, to make his contract, almost any declarer will try for it. You don't see that same spirit on the defense, however. Often a fair player will give up the ghost by merely reckoning that it is virtually impossible for his partner to hold the one card which would be required for him to set the contract, and so will not play him for it.

(Dealer: North North-South vulnerable)

North	East	South	West
Pass	1 ♠	2 ♥	2 NT
3 ♦	3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠

North and South had a terrific squabble after this deal was over really the kind which you never should see at a table where people are playing bridge, a game meant to produce pleasure for the participants.

South opened by laying down his diamond A, and then switched to his heart 6. The declarer reckoned that the K was surely under his tenace in view of South's bid. So he put in the Q and the K won for north. Back came a diamond, which South ruffed with the spade 5. That made three tricks for the defense, but it also constituted all but one that the pair got, as South then led to the heart A. Two high spades dropped the Q and J, and a club was given up at the end for down one.

If South, when in on the third trick after his diamond ruff, had led a club, North could have won with the A and returned another diamond. If East ruffed high, he would have built a trump trick for South, setting the contract two tricks.

In the argument, South said he thought it much more likely that North could ruff a second heart than that North could hold the club A. But North must have had something in high cards for his diamond bid, and a singleton heart K hardly would have been sufficient, according to North, who maintained South should have counted him for the club A.

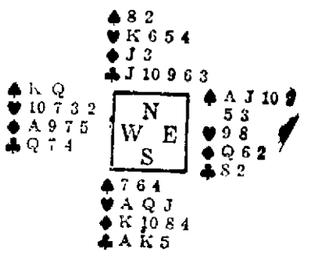
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

If the.e are three passes to South on this deal, how would you bid if you were trying desperately to score a game where none had been dealt.

SINK SIX MORE JAP SHIPS, TOLL NOW HITS 223

U. S. Subs Strike Paralyzing Blows at Enemy's Pacific Supply Lines.

freighter and one medium cargo vessel.

The ships reported damaged in the latest thrust at Jap supply lines were one large cargo ship, two small cargo ships, and one medium freighter.

The new sinkings came at a time when combined American and Australian forces were launching new offensives in the South Pacific. Knox, in announcing the previous tonnage destroyed, had emphasized that the sinkings made it difficult for the Japs to maintain supply lines to their far-flung advance bases in the Pacific.

Report Italian Funds Seized at Shanghai

(By Associated Press)

The Berlin radio quoted a Tokyo broadcast today as saying that Japanese authorities, after receiving the news of Premier Pietro Badoglio's unconditional surrender, immediately started taking over Italian investments in Shanghai.

The broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press said the action regarding Italian holdings in the Japanese-held city was taken "according to international law."

Japs Pull Planes to Southwest Pacific

By VERN HAUGLAND

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC (AP)—The Japanese air force staggered by losses approximating 1,000 planes in little over a month in the South and Southwest Pacific, is believed depleting its strength in China and Japan to support worsening ground situations in New Guinea and the Solomons.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters said today "the enemy apparently is drawing heavily from other fronts" in efforts to "rehabilitate his air forces from a succession of recent heavy defeats" such as the destruction of more than 360 planes at Wewak, New Guinea.

New air losses were listed in today's communique which also reported Australian veterans of African campaign brushing aside Japanese patrols five miles northeast of Lae, New Guinea and strengthening of Allied parachute positions seized to the northwest.

Marcus Defenses Hit While Japs Lie Low

PEARL HARBOR (AP)—The biggest aircraft carrier force ever sent on a single mission in the Pacific, boldly appearing 900 miles past Japanese-held Wake and within 1,200 miles of Tokyo sent bombing planes for eight hours over Marcus Island Sept. 1 until enemy defenses there had been laid waste.

Not a Japanese plane got off the ground. Not an enemy bomber showed up from other bases within range. Not a ship from Nippon's war fleet interfered at any time with the American task force, simply bruising for a tight in so-called enemy controlled waters.

One-ton block buster bombs, dropped for the first time from carrier-based planes, blew up Japanese hangars, fuel, ammunition stores and living quarters and pock marked two mile-long runways—facilities which the enemy had improved 400 per cent since Marcus first was raided in March, 1942.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, in a communique yesterday disclosing the first details of the raid, estimated that fully 80 per cent of the military installations on Marcus were destroyed.

Allies Clamp Down On Lae, Salamaua

UNITED NATIONS HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC (AP)—Allied ground troops today pressed closer to Lae and Salamaua, twin Japanese bases in northeast New Guinea, after warplanes blasted enemy supply dumps and outposts near Lae.

While ground forces maneuvered in preparation for the knockout blow, at Lae, heavy bombers dumped 96 tons of bombs on enmy installations and supply dumps. Attack planes strafed the Markham valley road and Jap outposts, clearing the way for further advances by American paratroopers, now 20 miles west of the Jap base.

So far, the Americans driving on Lae from the west and Australians approaching the base from the east have encountered only minor Jap patrols which were quickly overwhelmed.

NAZI ESCAPES

Keselring's Headquarters Hit By Flying Fortress Bombs.

LONDON (AP)—Field Marshal Gen. Albert Keselring, Nazi commander in Italy, escaped death yesterday during the raid by U. S. Flying Fortresses on Frascati, Italy, "only by a miracle," Radio Rome said today.

An Italian Stefani news agency dispath said Keselring barely missed being hurled in the debris when his quarters received a bomb hit.

crew member peering from the port side blister recognizable.

Housewives in the western part of the city complained that the vibration from the plane rattled windows and shook china on cupboard shelves.

Witnesses estimated that at times the giant aircraft had less than 300 feet altitude during its maneuvers. Civil air regulations as a matter of safety, prohibit civilian aircraft from flying lower than 1,000 feet over a populated district but military planes are not governed by the rules.

HUGE ALLIED RAID SOFTENS NORTH FRANCE

English Coast Areas Rocked By Reverberations From Ravaging Attack.

medium and light bombers attacked targets in the Boulogne area Wednesday night, an air ministry communique said.

R. A. F., Dominion and Allied fighters escorted and covered the bombers and carried out supporting sweeps. Few enemy aircraft were seen, but it was announced that at least one was destroyed.

Reverberations from the daylight bombings of the French coast were felt as far as six miles inland in England.

Although the German air force presently is estimated to have 2,000 fighters of all types based in western Europe they obviously are keeping the majority grounded. Today, however, they did send a few high over towns in southern England but these were driven off quickly by anti-aircraft fire. There were no immediate reports of bombings.

The communique detailing the night operations said not a single plane was lost.

In daylight today United States heavy bombers and British fighters and bombers have attacked airfields and other targets in northern France.

"Squadrons of U. S. A. A. F., R. A. F., Dominion and Allied fighters have made offensive sweeps of northern France and have maintained a patrol over the English channel.

"Details are not yet available but enemy activity has been slight and few engagements have been reported."

The daylight raids followed a night attack by British Royal Air Force bombers on enemy objectives on the continent.

The squadrons which went out after dawn crossed the southeast English coast and radiated toward different points.

Observers said that the force appeared to be one of the strongest ever to go out from England and even after the squadrons split up to strike at separate targets each formation appeared to be in big force.

The daylight activity followed extensive night sorties in which Allied bombers, scarcely without a break, kept up a two-way service over the Straits of Dover.

Heavy explosions rocking the French coast shook buildings in the Folkestone area of England like earth tremors. The main targets of the night attack appeared to have been between Boulogne and Dunkirk.

The attacking day forces included one formation which made a return journey over London, flying in perfect formation. The roar of the airplane engines drowned out the noise of the city's traffic.

A correspondent reporting from a southeast coastal town which apparently was the focal point for the outward bound planes said that the craft passed out in procession for more than 15 minutes.

"It was like a railroad junction as they split up," he said.

Weather over the channel was perfect for flying.

The Boulogne and Cap Gris Nez areas of France were battered in dusk assaults last evening after one of the British fighter command's busiest days of the war.

not stop for one single instant," he added. "Our fighting men know that. Those of them who are moving forward through the jungles against lurking Japs—those who are landing at this moment from barges moving through the dawn up to strange enemy coasts—those who are driving their bombers down on the target at roof top levels at this moment—every one of these men knows that this war is a full time job and that it will continue to be until total victory is won."

Mr. Roosevelt spoke last night to inaugurate the third war loan drive, a test of economic self-sacrifice in which the American people are not asked to give a leg or an arm or an eye—or their lives, but to lend their money, $15,000,000,000 of it. Mr. Roosevelt said we may be sure that the enemy will watch the progress of this war loan drive because it will measure the unity and determination of the United States to hammer this war to a successful conclusion.

Italy's fall was good news but the president warned that the time for celebration has not come. The facts are that there is no assurance of how much of Italy has fallen and how much of it the Italian government can deliver to the United Nations. Somewhere in Italy the Germans will take a stand, and there the battle will be joined.

Italy's surrender aroused more interest than enthusiasm in the capital. On this morning after, that aspect of capital reaction was even more pronounced. Equally noticeable was official anxiety lest the good news discourage war loan subscriptions or suggest to capital, labor or management that the urgent necessity for supreme productive effort had passed. You could sense that at the treasury, the White House, all over town.

"Let us not delude ourselves that this armistice means the end of the war in the Mediterranean," the president told the nation. "We must drive the Germans out of Italy as we have driven them out of Tunisia and Sicily, we must drive them out of France and all the other captive countries, and we must strike them on their own soil from all directions.

"Our ultimate objectives of the war continue to be Berlin and Tokyo.

"I ask you to bear these objectives constantly in mind—do not forget that we still have a long way to go before attaining them.

"The time for celebration is not yet. And I have a suspicion that when this war does end, we shall not be in a very celebrating frame of mind. I think that our main emotion will be one of grim determination that this shall not happen again."

HELD FOR PROBE

Man, Woman Quizzed In Wife's Fatal Fall.

COLUMBUS (UP)—Franklin county Sheriff Jacob E. Sandusky said today that Delmar C. Nutt, 38, and Miss Lavena Huntley, 24, of Buchtel, were being held in county jail on open charges while an investigation continued into the death of Nutt's wife Eunice, 32-year-old mother of seven children.

Police reported that Nutt and Miss Huntley were in the cab of Nutt's truck when Mrs. Nutt fell from it on route 33, three miles south of here on Aug. 28 and died of injuries received in the fall.

FREEDOM NEAR

Allied Prisoners In Italy Look Forward to Release.

LONDON—(AP)—Italy's surrender is expected to mean freedom for approximately 2,000 Americans and 70,000 British and Canadian troops and civilians now held as Italian prisoners of war.

"It can be assumed that the unconditional surrender accepted by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower took into account the immediate release of all prisoners of war and that they will reach Allied hands as soon as conditions allow," the British war office said today.

May said casualties, not only in Italy but in Sicily and Africa as well, had been far below "even the most optimistic expectations."

Chairman Reynolds (D.-N.C.) of the senate military committee, who already has called for "a general reassessment of the entire manpower program," told reporters the necessity for inducting fathers would have to be proven before it would win his approval.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

TELEPHONE 4251-6

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

WASHINGTON—Although the war is going well, our military people expect that the future months will be harder than the past ones. The deeper we go in, the harder the fighting may be.

Likewise, the coming months may be much more severe on the home front.

Because the war is going well, it is natural that we should expect relaxation of shortages and restrictions at home. But the outlook is not favorable for that.

Clapper

To be sure, President Roosevelt lifted the restriction on coffee drinking. Cuffs have been returned to men's trousers. Wherever such small restorations are possible they should be encouraged. Easing of minor irritating restrictions often will cause the larger sacrifices to be borne with less complaint.

On fuel, the outlook is not good. John Lewis and his coal strike gave us a setback. Possibly there will be more trouble this fall. In July, consumers normally are storing up stocks of coal for the winter. But this year, the amount of coal held in storage by consumers declined in July.

An additional burden may develop this fall. Now that Italy has surrendered, it is probable that we shall have to furnish coal. Italy's coal has been supplied by Germany. Britain, a pre-war source of coal for Italy, is too short now to ship any considerable quantity. Whatever amount of coal Italy is allowed must come out of American consumption.

Gasoline supplies for the east are not likely to be sufficient to permit a material increase in rations. Submarine sinkings have almost disappeared, and that, plus tanker construction, puts us back toward where we were in tankers at the beginning of the war. Yet demands for fuel abroad, especially aviation fuel, are unbelievable.

Next will come the development of the Pacific theater. That will tax our fuel shipment capacity from the Pacific coast. Tank cars relieved by the big inch pipe line will be needed for the long haul to the Pacific coast. And big inch isn't able to carry the load by itself even for military needs.

So gasoline is bound to remain tight in the east.

Railroad transportation is not likely to ease. The Office of Defense Transportation is appealing for suspension of "full-crew laws" because of a shortage of railroad labor. Three big train wrecks in a week indicate some kind of strain that is having disastrous effects. As the Pacific theater of war becomes more active, the burden on transcontinental railroads and rolling stock will become much heavier.

War production seems to have achieved that miracle which skeptics once said would be necessary to meet President Roosevelt's schedules. We are producing airplanes at the rate of 90,000 a year and this month it may jump to a rate of 100,000 a year. In spite of manpower trouble at Boeing, production of four-motored bombers is practically up with the schedule. More combat planes were produced in August than ever before.

But for every let up that is possible, there will be an added burden somewhere else. If the government can ease the war burden at any point, it should be encouraged to do so without the risk of public war morale letting down.

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

NEW YORK—One very significant note in the clamor for an attack by American and British men on the French channel coast is the loud silence of the American people who seem to be agreed that they know too little about the hazards and the relative strength of the Allies and the Germans to entitle them to a firm opinion. Up to now, after a flat-footed start, the American arms have done wonders with few serious mistakes and low casualties and Italy has been completely finished off as an enemy. It has not been long since the Germans were strong and offensive in Africa, and Spain was a potential menace. In a year, Africa has been cleared, Sicily taken and Italy conquered, and Spain neutralized. Mussolini has flopped, Germany's war factories have been hammered badly and the German propaganda, once so brutal and arrogant, has taken on a distinctly defensive and desperate character. And, in Russia, last year's German offensive was a dead loss and this year's wilted and broke into another big defeat.

Pegler

All this being so, what is the hurry? If the war can be won anyway and by prolonging the contest for another year or even two, Roosevelt and Churchill can save a million or more American and British casualties the American people and, we may assume, the British, too, will not complain. Certainly, in the meanwhile, there is no danger that Germany will get any stronger and therefore the only ground for demanding that new front on the channel coast, regardless of the cost, would be to help Russia, which seems to be in no danger, costly and painful though the battle is.

The American people have criticized very little the management of the military phases of this war. On the contrary, we are generally satisfied, perhaps too content, and the people trust the military chiefs and the president and Churchill, too, for that matter, on the basis of their success to date and at so comparatively little cost in blood. If they decide, of their own judgment, to attack France where Germany appears to be strongest and the decision is based on military considerations only, ignoring politics, and the attack succeeds, the people will stand for high casualties. But the president and Churchill certainly know that the Americans would not approve an attack made only in response to the political second-front propaganda, with horrible losses and no greater result than to draw off some of the divisions that are opposing the Russians in the east.

The fact is too glaring and exasperating that few if any of those who cry up the so-called second front have any intention to take a personal part if the attempt is made. Of the native Americans, several conspicuous individuals notably Joseph Curran, president of the National Maritime Union, have obtained deferments in the draft, and Earl Browder, beyond the draft age now, served a term in Leavenworth for his refusal to register for the draft in the first World war.

Even without that particular second front, Germany apparently is doomed to military defeat (possibly through internal collapse under various pressures, including the Russian pressure on land and the attack on her cities from the air), within a year. But even if the end were postponed another year and the president and Churchill thus were to save the lives of half a million or more American and British men, the American people would make no complaint. This pressure on the president and Cordell Hull is, in the main, not American pressure. The American sentiment, which really matters arises from the homes of millions of plain citizens, uninformed and not much interested in international politics and the aspirations of European groups. And, although it may not be necessary to consult them before such an attack is made, it certainly would be necessary to reckon with them if it were made at awful cost without sound military necessity, and particularly if it were made without success.

ON BROADWAY-- By Dorothy Kilgallen

A Gag Man Tells a Few.

PETER DONALD, comedian-raconteur and leading spirit of the gag-busting radio program "Can You Top This?" thinks it might not be a bad idea for the Broadway columnists to abandon some of their time-honored and time-worn customs and throw some fresh chestnuts on the fire. He holds that they ought to abandon for a while some of the stock personalities they have kept so vividly in print for such a long time.

Kilgallen

After all, he says, Sam Goldwyn and Michael Curtiz are not the only men in the world who ever misused the English language to comic effect. Stokowski is not the only temperamental man in the world and George Jessel is not the only man ever to marry a very young girl.

I am giving Donald the floor—and the rest of the column—so he can illustrate what he means.

Lord and the Temperance society know how many people are tipplers but apparently only W. C. Fields ever touched a drop, if the columnists speak the truth. For example, the other day W. C. was suffering from one of his daily hangovers. "May I fix you a seltzer?" suggested the waiter. "Ye gods, no!" moaned Fields. "I couldn't stand the noise!" So conditioned has the column reading public become to these hidebound rules that such an anecdote would lose its meaning if told about, say Sherman Billingsley.

You all know what a voracious eater Alfred Hitchcock is. I'm sure you do. The typewriter-tappers have lived for years off the fat of the man. Let this be the last time I mention his culinary eccentricities. He dined recently at the rather spare table of one of Hollywood's best-known hostesses (who shall herein go blameless—rationing, you know). As the coffee was brought in to the still-starving director, after an OPA aggravatingly-small meal, the hostess beamed, "I do hope that you will soon dine here again."

"By all means," croaked Hitchcock, "let's start now."

I don't even have to mention his name, but you'll know who he is anyway. The columns have, by now, convinced you he is the only man who ever insulted anybody (that is, the only man besides George Bernard Shaw who ever insulted anybody—but that's another anecdote). He was leaving a dull get-together the other night. "I've had a wonderful evening," he said to his host on the way out, "but this wasn't it."

* * *

G. B. Shaw, like Levant, is one of the world's great insulters, but unlike Oscar, does not eat meat. Now, there are millions of people who do not eat meat (about 7,000,000 in New York City alone who don't ever SEE meat) but the columnists have chosen Mr. Shaw from the ranks as the vegetarian of all time. And so, you are told how, at a party in London, the bearded bard had before him on his plate his usual fare—a weird mixture of greens and various salad oils. Sir James Barrie, who was Shaw's neighbor at the table, leaned over and asked in a confidential tone: "Tell me one thing, Shaw, have you eaten that—or are you going to?"

* * *

You have the written word of his fellow columnists that Sidney Skolsky is the world's foremost hypochondriac. Whenever I see that five-syllable word in print Sidney's name pops into my mind. There must be someone who is more of a hypochondriac—but you can't prove it by any of the columns I've read. Skolsky is to hypochondria what Watson was to the hypodermic—and always will be unless columnists heed my advice and turn over a new leaf in the book of anecdotes. I believe, then, every word of the story, when I learn that Sidney happened to hear two studio doctors discussing a patient's kidney ailment the other day. Overcome with imagined pains, he rushed to his own physician to insist that he had kidney trouble. The medico explained that in that particular affliction there were no pains or discomforts of any kind. "I knew it," screamed Skolsky, "my symptoms exactly."

CHARGES DAIRY INDUSTRY TIED BY RED TAPE

Sen. Aiken Asserts Shortage of Farm Gasoline May Bring Milk Rationing.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Sen. George D. Aiken (R) of Vt., charged today that federal red tape is imperilling the nation's dairy industry and may ultimately force milk rationing as well as higher point values for cheese.

Aiken's statement coincided with a War Food Administration announcement authorizing establishment of a system of dealer quotas for fluid milk sales designed to reduce civilian purchases of cream and milk by-products, including cottage cheese, to essential needs.

"With manpower and machinery shortages combining with bad weather, the farmers' need for gasoline is desperate," Aiken said. "He is asked to deliver 130 per cent of normal production yet he is given only 41 per cent of his 1941 gasoline consumption and he must run the gantlet of six ponderous federal agencies to get that."

Aiken's charges were made as a senate agriculture subcommittee opened a special investigation of gasoline allotments and virtual coercion of farmers into buying fuel from major petroleum firms at four cents a gallon over co-operative prices.

"Because of the confusion resulting from handling of the situation by so many agencies, co-operatives say they are not getting gasoline," Aiken declared. "The result is that farmers must drive to town and buy fuel at the pumps operated by the big concerns."

Agencies having a hand in supplying of gasoline to farmers are the Petroleum Administration for War, Office of Defense Transportation, Office of Price Administration, War Production Board, Interstate Commerce Commission and Department of agriculture.

Aiken blamed the OPA's retail price rollback for complicating the whole dairy picture.

"Retail prices were reduced 10 per cent while production costs rose 20 per cent," he asserted. "There was no way to compensate the producers, especially the small fellows who have 10 cows or less and represent about two-thirds of the dairying industry."

TEST DATE SET

Exams For State Patrol Posts To Be Given Sept. 29.

Examinations for a number of positions in the state highway patrol will be given in Columbus Wednesday, Sept. 29, Ohio civil service commission officials said today.

The positions for which examinations are scheduled are patrolman, radio operator, and radio technician. Examinations will be conducted in the Seneca hotel, Columbus.

Applications and bulletins giving complete information as to the duties, salaries, and qualifications required of applicants for each position may be secured from the county auditor's office at the courthouse.

Persons desiring to compete in any of these examinations must file their applications before Sept. 22.

WOULD RETRIEVE PENSION FUNDS

Jenkins Prepares Bill To Get Back $3,000,000 Lost During Dispute.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — If congress gets a chance to consider other than war legislation this year, it will be asked to decide again whether Ohio is entitled to reimbursement for federal old age pension funds for October 1938.

Tucked in a pigeonhole of the house judiciary committee is a new bill by Rep Thomas A Jenkins, Ironton, O., Republican, intended to settle the issue, which attracted countrywide attention several years ago. At that time congress approved a bill to reimburse the state to the extent of more than $3,000,000 but President Roosevelt vetoed it.

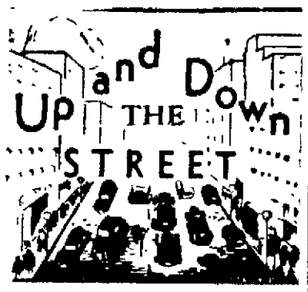
The Social Security board withheld the federal contribution for October pensions on the ground that former Gov. Martin L. Davey used the state pension system for political purposes during an election campaign. The state used its own money to pay the federal share of pensions and that is the money Jenkins wants to collect.

Davey denied he involved the system in politics. Jenkins argues that the worst charge that could be made was the administration was under par.

The original measure called for outright reimbursement of the full amount. But the new bill makes certain reservations. It would authorize the board to deduct amounts found to have been paid improperly, and then pay to the state one half of the sum determined to have been paid in accordance with regulations, plus five per cent of that sum. The board also could deduct the cost of its inquiry.

SLAYER RELEASED

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Stedman Thompson, 18-year-old high school student charged with killing his stepfather, Dr. Charles R Owens, Ohio State instructor, has been released from the Columbus State hospital for the insane to attend a New York private school, Supt. J. F. Bateman reported.



Discovery of a huge toadstool or mushroom with an obnoxious odor yesterday on the lawn at a Hammond avenue home and another at the home of Health Commissioner W. B. Wild sent the city health department workers in search of books on fungus plants. The plant that shot up out of the earth at the Hammond avenue home was more than eight inches tall and its odor was so bad that nearby residents called the health department to trace it down. When Dr. Wild went home last night he found another of the puzzling plants beside his front walk. He said one of the plants probably would be sent to the Ohio Experiment station at Wooster for identification. Meanwhile, he advised careful selection of mushrooms for food during the wet fall season when many of them spring up with toadstools in fields.

George Page, who owns a store in Shiloh, was wondering today what anyone would want with five drivers' licenses. Page is a deputy registrar and had the licenses stored in a basement room. Last night someone broke into the room and took five of the licenses, he reported to Sheriff Frank E Robinson. In addition to the licenses the thieves helped themselves to a little change Page had in the basement.

In getting ready to move the Red Cross Production center from the present house on West Fourth street to the new chapter house at 309 Park avenue west, workers have found that there's not only Red Cross property but also personal property stuck around in various corners. It would make too much work to move this, so anyone having personal property at the production center is asked to get it. Red Cross will not be responsible for it after next Wednesday, chapter officials said.

WFA TO REDUCE '44 PIG CROP

Blames Low Feed Supplies as Prospects For Pork Chops Grow Leaner.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — People who go in for long-range worrying can start brooding now about the probability of fewer pork chops in 1945.

Because of low feed supplies, the war food administration has moved to reduce next spring's pig crop by 17 per cent.

The WFA said prospective feed supplies will be inadequate to maintain hog production at present record levels. Already farmers particularly those in the deficit feed producing areas of the east, south and west, are running short of corn and other feed for their dairy cattle and poultry flocks.

A reduction in hog production next year would tend to make more grain available for the production of milk and eggs.

The WFA said that a 1944 spring pig crop of about 61,000,000 head appears to be justified. This year's spring crop totaled 74,000,000 head, the largest on record.

The reduction is expected as a result of WFA's action in lowering the government support price of hogs from $13.75 to $12.50 a hundred pounds, Chicago basis, effective Oct. 1, 1944. That's the time of year when the 1944 spring pig crop will start to market in volume.

The change was announced at this time so that farmers might have ample time to make plans for spring farrowings.

The $12.50 support price will apply only to lighter hogs weighing between 190 and 230 pounds. The present $13.75 support level, which will expire when next year's spring pigs start moving to market, is applicable to hogs weighing between 200 and 270 pounds. Thus heavier hogs would be dropped from next year's program.

FUND SHORTAGE CLOUDS OHIO'S MATERNITY AID

Markwith Says U. S. Allocates $126,000 But State Needs $222,000 For Program.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Possible depletion of a congressional appropriation clouds Ohio's maternity and infant care program for the wives of non-commissioned service men, State Health Director R. H. Markwith said today.

"The U. S. children's bureau has allocated $126,240 to Ohio for September maternity care," Dr. Markwith said, "although we estimated we would process 2,477 applications this month, involving approximately $222,930 in earmarked funds at an average of $90 per case.

"The bureau notified us that the balance of its original appropriation of $1,600,000 has been allocated to participating states on a pro rata basis, making $126,240 available to Ohio.

"The bureau said congress is expected to appropriate additional money, however, after it reconvenes Sept. 14."

Since Uncle Sam has earmarked all remaining funds, Ohio is setting aside its portion to finance the care of wives who expect the stork within a few weeks.

"The only practical approach," Dr Markwith said "is to encumber the money for the most pressing cases. We shall await congressional action and additional funds before pledging money for wives who expect to become mothers in future months."

Dr. Markwith also reported more than 1,000 requests received this week from service men's wives for applications to qualify their infants less than one year old for government-financed medical care.

Under infant care, separate from the maternity program, the government allows a maximum of $22 for doctor's fees and hospitalization up to 14 days at not more than $5.50 daily for any service man's child that has not reached its first birthday.

The director said the program was designed "only for children that are seriously ill and not for routine care of well infants."

GIVES A LIFT

Mayor Sends Zanesville Copy of Garbage Ordinance.

A copy of Mansfield's ordinance providing for a city-wide garbage service was mailed today to the Zanesville health department which is trying to solve that city's garbage disposal problem.

In his letter to Dr. D. G. Caudy, Zanesville health officer, Mayor W. J. Locke outlined the Mansfield plan and added that the city was having trouble providing adequate service at the existing rate of $1.80 for three months.

For the $1.80 quarterly fee, payable in advance, Mansfield garbage service subscribers get one collection weekly and those who subscribe throughout the year receive free ash and rubbish collection service.

Five Sworn In, Report For Boot Training.

Five youths from the Mansfield district have been sworn into the U S Navy, while two others were sworn into the SEABEES, navy recruiting offices said today.

Those who will report for boot training at Great Lakes, Ill., are Dale L Spiess Mansfield R. D 5, Elden Kirkwood, Shiloh, John A Gerhart, Mansfield R. D. 5; Herman F Krise 120 North Weldon avenue, and John Gunter, jr, Shelby

Reporting to Williamsburg, Va., for the SEABEES are Vernon G Castor, 185 South Franklin avenue and William I McLaughlin, 187 East First street

SAVES CROPS

SACRAMENTO— (INS)—Ant hordes attacking in the victory gardens of California, are being held back by a poison-trap method of defense The traps are attached to wooden pegs driven firmly into the ground At first heavy losses of ant-cup pegs through wood decay and termite attack were reported but pressure-treatment of these pegs with a salts preservative has reduced cost to a minimum through elimination of replacement. Thousands of these cups with treated pegs are going into service, foreshadowing victory over Victory Garden ants

GIRLS IN COURT ON FUND CHARGE

Two girls, 13 and 11 years of age, taken into custody for illegal solicitation of funds for Red Cross, have been arraigned in juvenile court.

The 13-year-old who was in court in the spring for soliciting money for Girl Scout cookies and who has been caught stealing in local stores will be sent to the Bureau of Juvenile Research.

Judge Stuart H. Cramer put the younger girl on probation to her mother with orders to report each week for three months

'HER DRAFT 'S CALENDAR OR CONGRESS

; Expected To Return 'Show Me Why' Attitude ward View on Dads.

By Associated Press)

HINGTON — A mounting ersy over the plan to draft occupies a top place on endar of the returning con- with a strong possibility vmakers will countermand ortant decision of the na- military chiefs for the first nce Pearl Harbor.

test will come on a measure vent induction of fathers fter Jan. 1, a stop-gap bill d to give congress time to he manpower requirements armed forces and the re- ome front problems of pro- war materials, civilian es- and food.

congress—a body which, ost unanimous accord, has the war bosses a free rein stering, training and fight- ie biggest armed forces in untry's history—has turned cal on the draft-fathers state after statement is- uring the summer recess, become evident that the ors are returning to Wash- with an I'm-from-Missouri, ic-why attitude.

have demonstrated their ination to obtain from fe- le officials — Manpower ssioner McNutt, Selective Director Hershey, General C. Marshall, army chief and War Production Chief Nelson—answers to these ns:

big is our army now?

t is the total we can main- broad and still fulfill our the-Allies pledges?

many fathers do the mili- uthorities plan to draft?

re are they needed most n military service or war time element, with selective headquarters calling upon draft boards to begin in- fathers on Oct. 1, has the subject priority over major questions.

tor Wheeler (D., Mont.), of the bill to halt the fa- aft for three months, said ld call it up Sept. 15, just after congress returns to gislative work. From a esman for administration on the hill came word that s of defeating the bill are that its course will be h. Senator Maybank (D.,) has insisted that the ent of the military au- ies should not be chal- t on the question, while Senator Ball (R., Minn.) has declared that the fact a man is a father should not be the prime factor in granting deferments.

If passed by the senate, the legislation then would be shunted over to the house, which months ago went on record against induction of fathers until the supply of single men and childless married men has been exhausted.

There, confidently awaiting its arrival, two groups favoring the stop-gap measure are debating strategy for obtaining final passage of the measure. One group would protect the bill from amendment to avoid a deadlock with the senate; the other has advocated additions to provide by law for induction on a statewide rather than local basis and to set up order-of-induction categories based upon dependency status.

Meanwhile, there remained the possibility that President Roosevelt would intervene, either by outlining to the congressional military committees the reasons for calling up fathers or by a veto of the Wheeler bill if and when it gains approval of the house and senate.

WOODEN WALKS

BROOKLINE, Mass. (INS)—Last city of its size to cling to wooden sidewalks, Brookline, Mass., has built five miles of these picturesque walks using planks that were specially treated with a salts preservative to avoid the decay which created a hazard in untreated walks.

EXPAND PARK METER AREA

12 More Devices Will Be Installed on North Main, Boals Says.

The parking meter area in Mansfield's downtown section will be expanded with the installation of 12 meters on North Main street between Fourth street and Temple court, Traffic Commissioner Frend C. Boals said today.

Three of the meters will be taken from in front of the post office on Fourth street and moved to Main street. Enforcement of an ordinance limiting parking to 10 minutes on both sides of the post office day or night will begin immediately, Boals said. The city has purchased 10 new meters to be used on Main street.

With the lifting of the detour on the U. S. Route 30-N grade elimination at the western edge of the city, the traffic light at Park avenue west and West Park drive will be moved to Glessner and South Sturges avenues, Mayor W. J. Locke said, in an attempt to clear up some of the traffic congestion at the intersection.

Detour traffic has been moving over West Park drive past Senior high school, and any damage to the street resulting from the heavy travel will be repaired by the state, the mayor said. Detour signs at the new grade elimination project west of the city were removed last week-end.

CAMERAMAN LOSES BIRDIE

ABILENE, Tex. — (U.P.) — Pvt. Joseph Ehrlich, army photographer at Abilene, has lost his birdie. When he came to work he found a chicken roosting on his camera tripod. It flew away before Pvt. Ehrlich could relieve the meat shortage.

KROGER — ACCEPT THIS AMAZING GUARANTEE: "Buy any Kroger brand item. Like it as well as or better than any other, or return unused portion in original container, and we will replace it, absolutely FREE, with the same item or any brand we sell, regardless of price."

This year—more than twice as many people are demanding Boscul Coffee!

SUE: Think I ought to tell him, Mom, that we've changed brands?

MOM: Why not? You're the one who discovered this Boscul. Sue went looking for a richer coffee when rationing was on—to make our coupons stretch. That's how she found Boscul—and it was a mighty rich find!

MOM: It's richer, all right. My mouth starts to water at the first good whiff! And, gee, what a swell taste! I've found out just how good coffee can be!

SUE: Know why it's richer, dear? Mountain coffees. The grocer said Boscul puts more of them into every pound because they add so much strength and flavor.

TOM: Smart gal I'm engaged to, Mom. Think I'll marry her now so I can demand Boscul every day!

Because so many people are demanding Boscul Coffee, your grocer may sometimes be out of it. But keep asking—that mellow flavor and rich aroma are worth waiting for!
